Who's Got The Bomb?

Gen. de Gaulle has won a magnificent victory for France and the Western nations. But the sullen French army in Algeria makes us uneasy.

One of the things in life which makes us all members of "The - Gobins'll - Git - You-Ef-You-Don't - Watch - Out" club is the fact that France has an atomic bomb ready to explode and the army is not trustworthy or loyal to the government.

You find yourself thinking of the fanatic eyes of rebel leader Pierre Lagaillarde and of Gen. Jacques Massu's hard-chiseled face. You recall the expressed philosophy of these earnest men, which is one of ruthlessness in the old manner. The imagination pictures them and their kind having control of the atomic weapon which President de Gaulle was about to explode in the Sahara before the Algerian revolt blew up in his face.

The General Massus and Lagaillardes of this world are not concerned with the niceties of things. They would, if they had a supply of these weapons, use them on Algerian rebel concentrations with all the aplomb of men dealing with a mere statistical problem . . . so many atom bombs, so many dead rebels . . . and so many more frightened into surrender.

Fighting Force

This is a sick French army in Algeria, however good it is. And it is an excellent fighting force. Its sickness began after the second world war. It was worsened by the humiliations and defeat in Indochina. It is an army which believes it is trained and tough enough to defeat the Algerian rebels. It has schooled itself in Mao Tse-tung tactics. It is not an army with a philosophy save of the most narrow, provincial, professional kind, tortured out of shape by much bitterness and frustration. It is an army which wants to march into Tunisia to get even there. It might just take a swipe into Morocco and have a go there. And if an African war begins? What better thing is there for an army? With an atomic bomb?

Where is Gen. de Gaulle's bomb anyhow? And who has it? Do scientists possess it? Or the army? Do men loyal to De Gaulle have their hands on it? Or ambitious rebels who would like to give France a leader from army ranks —or one hand-picked by the military junta to rule France.

"The goblins'll git you ef you don't watch out."

The thought of that bomb . . . and an army sullen and in revolt, is not a good thought. It is a nightmare dream.

Nor is all happiness behind the doors of the Atomic Energy office in Washington. Nor in the Pentagon department where they think on such things as nuclear weapons.

Nuclear Bombs

We are coming nearer a dreadful day when nations can go shopping for nuclear bombs the way they now go to supermarkets for machine guns, automatic rifles, aircraft, old subs and old-fashioned bombs.

Sweden, for example, has estimated that by using her reactors for plutonium production, instead of electric power, she could, within a couple of years, turn out enough for 15 atom bombs per year. This plutonium would then have to be chemically separated from basic uranium to be usable. But this, relatively, is simple, being a process within the grasp of first rate scientists.

If Sweden can do it, so can any small country with the money and brains.

And such bombs are becoming cheaper to produce.

We are very close, as years go, to the day when these awesome weapons will be available to those who have the price.

Only a really tough control can prevent this.

It would need to be severe enough to prevent bootlegging of such items. Dr. Castro, for example, would like now to have a few in stock. So would a dozen other small nations, suffering from intense nationalism and an immature sense of belligerency.

But France has a bomb. And for the time being we assume Gen. de Gaulle controls it.

Algiers Uprising Ends; Die-Hards Give Up, Join War on Moslem Rebels

Legaillarde Flown To Prison in Paris

By GODFREY ANDERSON

ALGIERS (AP)—The French insurrection in Algiers ended ingloriously Monday with one of the two leaders in custody and the other in flight.

The last die-hards marched out of the barricades after getting a harsh army dictate to form a unit with the French Foreign Legion to fight Algeria's Moslem rebels or go home and face possible trial for subversion.

Moving firmly to end the eight-day uprising, President Charles de Gaulle's government laid down the unbending alternatives. They were relayed to the insurgents by a paratroop colonel at a meeting behind the barricades Sunday night.

420 AGREE

A government spokesman said 420 of the insurgents who surrendered with their goateed military leader, Pierre Lagaillarde, agreed to serve with the Legion as a special unit. Gen. Jean Crepin, Algiers corps commander, said they would fight the Algerian nationalists who have been in revolt against French rule for five years.

Lagaillarde was flown to Paris Monday night and put in prison.

Less than 12 hours after he marched out of the Algiers barricades at the head of his dispirited followers, Lagaillarde arrived here in a military plane.

The paratroops reserve lieutenant and deputy in the French National Assembly was taken to the grim Sante Prison under heavy guard.

ORDER FROM ALGIERS

A policeman told Lagaillarde at the airport that an order for his arrest had been issued by Algiers courts.

Inside the prison, an assistant prosecutor told Lagaillarde that he had been charged with an attack on the security of the state.

Joseph Ortiz, the saloon keeper who was political boss of the insurrection, fled as his comrades filed out of the barricades to surrender. The spokesman had no news of his whereabouts.

The spokesman said all the men with Lagaillarde had been told they could return to their families but that if they did so they faced investigations.

These investigations would be made by authorities sent from

Appeals Court Voids Cadle's Indictment

The conspiracy indictment under which Deputy Loan Commissioner Ralph Cadle was convicted was invalid on three points, the Georgia Court of Appeals ruled Monday.

The decision means that new indictments must be drawn against both Cadle and Comp. Gen. Zack Cravey if Fulton County prosecutors want to pursue the case.

But the decision raised grave doubts whether the state's conspiracy statute can be used against officials accused of using employes for campaigning purposes.

"It would . . . require a strained construction of a criminal statute," Judge B. C. Gardner wrote, "to say that it (the law) was intended to prevent a public officer of the state from campaigning for re-election or to prevent his employes from supporting him. . . .

"The statute was not intended to prevent an employe of the state from engaging in political activities while traveling over the state in the performance of his official

3 Mental Health Bills Win Easily

By JACK NELSON

Three mental health measures got final legislative approval Monday and a fourth one rebounded from an earlier defeat for a resounding victory in the House.

The Senate passed House measures which provide for: (1) state scholarships for mental health personnel; (2) the addition of a psychiatrist to the State Board of Health, and (3) legislative sanction of Gov. Vandiver's transfer of Milledgeville State Hospital from the welfare to the health department. All were passed without a dissenting vote.

By a 117-0 vote, the House passed an administration bill to abolish the Georgia Commission on Alcoholism and transfer its duties to the health department. The bill had been called back for reconsideration after having failed by 28 votes (83-66) last Thursday.

Rep. Frank Twitty, floor leader, urged the House to pass the measure and said he thought some members failed to understand the bill when it was presented last week. He explained that there would be no personnel changes in connection with the commission's work and pointed out that members of the commission would become members of an advisory committee to work with the health

25 in State House Down with Flu

The Georgia House was hard hit by absenteeism Monday and Speaker George Smith attributed 25 to 30 of the 88 absences to flu.

Speaker Smith had trouble mustering the 103 votes requisite for passing bills at times during the morning, but by adjournment 150 of the 205 members were voting. Rep. John Lee Phillips of Walton County was admitted to a private hospital Sunday night for an emergency appendectomy.

Attendance in the Senate was better, with 46 of the 54 members answering.

House Bill Makes Barratry a Felony

By BRUCE GALPHIN

A bill to put teeth into laws against stirring up lawsuits will be offered to the House Tuesday as a pre-segregation measure backed by Gov. Vandiver.

The bill proposes to make barratry—the promotion of litigation—a felony, rather than a misdemeanor as under present statutes.

It also redefines barratry to include situations not now covered by law.

Vandiver has said the barratry bill is the only segregation measure the administration will sponsor this session.

The bill results from an interim legislative study and will be submitted by the study committee's chairman, Rep. Harold Murphy of Haralson County.

Though making no reference to specific types of cases, the bill is believed to be aimed at reducing integration suits.

The definitions of barratry proposed in the bills include:

1. "Frequently" stirring up suits between individuals or between individuals and government agencies.

2. The filing of a suit or legal action by an attorney without obtaining "due and proper authorization." from the plaintiff.

3. The encouraging of an action by an attorney or any other person who "thereafter defrays or offers to defray the costs of maintaining such action . . . or to furnish counsel or other legal assistance in connection therewith."

4. The offering of money "or other thing of value" as inducement to the filing of suits.

As drawn, the bill would allow corporations and associations to be charged with barratry as well as individuals.

In addition, the bill defines the crime of conspiracy to commit barratry and makes it a misdemeanor.

The new bill removes a provi-

Greer Offers A Diluted Patrol Bill

By GENE BRITTON

A watered-down version of an administration - backed proposal for the use of unmarked State Patrol cars will be introduced in the Senate Tuesday.

Sen. John Greer of Lakeland said Monday he will offer the bill and will call for a public hearing on it.

In a busy day Monday, the Senate, meanwhile, approved two major fiscal proposals of the administration:

1. Revision of the Gasoline Tax Allocations Amendment and:

2. Authorization of the state to receive interest on the investment of its idle funds.

The proposed amendment to revise the allocations amendment already had been approved by the House. It now is ready to be put to the electorate for ratification in the November general election. The idle funds bill also had been passed by the House

Red Rocket Lead Of 3-1 by '61 Seen

By JOHN W. FINNEY

WASHINGTON—The Soviet Union will have at least 150 intercontinental ballistic missiles in operational readiness in 1961, according to the latest intelligence estimates of the United States.

This means, if the estimates are correct, that the Soviet Union will have at least a three-to-one superiority over the United States in intercontinental missiles. The United States in the coming year will have fewer than 50 ICBM's ready to fire.

This predicted superiority in Soviet missile strength became known Monday as Secretary of Defense Gates again went before Congress to defend the adequacy of the administration's defense budget, particularly for the production of intercontinental missiles.

Testifying before the Senate Appropriations Committee, Gates conceded that on the basis of the latest intelligence estimates the Soviet Union "may enjoy, at times, a moderate numerical superiority" in ballistic missiles during the next three years.

Gates insisted, however, that

Syrians Fire Again On Israelis

JERUSALEM (AP) — Sporadic gunfire sounded Monday night on the black-out Israeli-Syrian border area where air and ground forces met in the fourth straight day of fighting.

Mortars and machineguns opened fire shortly before midnight from the Syrian side in the Jordan River sector near the Sea of Galilee. There was no reported answering fire from Israeli positions.

Tension over the border clashes heightened when Israeli and Syrian jet fighters joined the battle for the first time.

Both sides threatened to continue fighting and Cairo radio declared the United Arab Republic's armed forces had been put on a state-of-emergency alert.

(The Middle East News Agency in Cairo said cryptically late Monday night that U.A.R. troops are headed toward the Egyptian-Israeli border in the Sinai Desert.)

The Syrians claimed they shot down one Israeli jet fighter and damaged another in a dogfight over Syrian territory. They said four Israeli Super-Mystere jets, which are French-made, engaged their Soviet-made MIGs.

An Israeli spokesman said there were only two Israeli fighters against four Syrians in the fight over the border town of Metullah, and the Arab planes were chased away without casualties to either side.

Israel reported three Israeli and

Train Bound Here Derails Near Biloxi

The last six cars of an Atlanta-bound Louisville & Nashville passenger train left the tracks near Biloxi, Miss., Monday night. A few passengers suffered minor injuries, but did not require hospitalization, railroad officials said.

The train, originated in New Orleans and was composed of two sections, the Piedmont Limited for New York and the Gulf Wind for Florida. More than 100 persons were aboard the train.

Rail officials said the Piedmont Limited, due to arrive in Atlanta at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, would be delayed two to two-and-one-half hours.

Groundhog Scared? No One Cared

By FRANK WELLS

A groundhog—and this by the dictionary—
Is a thick-set marmot. And he's not very Prepossessing or bright.

But newsmen for past ages gone
Have rolled out of bed at crack of dawn
And written phrases trite
About this rodent and his shadow scare
Predicting weather—either foul or fair—
For six more weeks, both day and night.

What they don't figure—or maybe don't care—
It isn't the shadow that gives him the scare,
But the flashbulb's blinding light!

Anyway, old groundhog will be doing his usual predicting about the time you sit down to your coffee. His predictions here couldn't even mean much, because he's not indigenous to this area. (Indigenous, children, means that even if he lives here, he wasn't meant to. The groundhog is supposed to live in the northeastern United States and Canada.

Where the groundhog is indigenous, his predictions don't mean much either. Up there they have winter nearly all year 'round except in the lucky years when summer falls on the Fourth of July.

Virginian Hails Private Schools

By WARREN BOSWORTH

Virginia's Prince Edward County has borne the cross for segregated schools at any price for the entire South, Roy Pearson, administrator of the Prince Edward School Foundation, told cheering Atlanta segregationists Monday night.

"How much is education of your children worth fighting for?" he asked the crowd of more than 1,500 persons who jammed into the Tower Theater.

Pearson outlined what has happened in the rural Virginia county since the citizens there scrapped their public schools and inaugurated private ones rather than face integration.

"We have had threefold results," he said. "We have placed emphasis on fundamentals . . . the community has a much greater interest in its schools . . . and the youngsters are getting more practical knowledge," he said.

Time after time, Pearson was interrupted by thunderous applause during his speech as was Lt. Gov. Byrd and state political leader Roy Harris, who also spoke to the gathering.

Pearson said the private white schools in Prince Edward Coun-

Georgians Attack Ban On Poll Tax

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Although Georgia no longer has a poll tax, Senators Russell and Talmadge took the floor of the Senate Monday to defend a state's right to levy a poll tax if it wants to.

They joined other Southerners in opposing a law proposed by Sen. Javits (R-NY) and a constitutional amendment proposed by Sen. Holland (D-Fla) to abolish the poll tax.

Meanwhile, Talmadge, in a separate speech, called on Atty. Gen. Rogers to explain to the American people why he had modeled a federal "voting referee" bill after "one of the infamous Reconstruction acts."

HEARINGS PLANNED

While this was going on in the Senate, the House Rules Committee agreed to hold hearings on a civil rights bill, clearing the way for probable floor action around Feb. 15th.

In his attack on the attorney general, Talmadge noted that Rogers has had much to say about congested dockets in federal courts and the need for more judges.

It is difficult to understand, Talmadge said, why Rogers would want to increase the courts' burden by requiring the courts to assume receivership of state and local elections.

The Georgian questioned whether Rogers wants to see judges recommended by Rogers placed on federal benches to administer the proposed voting referee law.

POLITICS HINTED

"Is it not possible that Mr. Rogers wants election referees appointed by federal judges recommended by him to assure that closely divided votes in pivotal metropolitan areas go to the Republicans rather than to the Democrats?" Talmadge asked.

"Could it be, Mr. President, that the attorney general of the United States is looking at this scheme through the eyes of a potential candidate for vice president?" he asked.

"On the basis of the facts at hand," Talmadge added, "it is impossible to accept at face value Mr. Rogers' pious contention that his only interest is in protecting the right to vote in the South."

UP TO STATES

On the poll tax issue, both Russell and Talmadge said they had no brief for the tax as a prerequisite for voting, but that it should be up to the states to maintain or abolish the tax, not Congress.

Only five states still have the poll tax, and Russell said he thinks the tax is outmoded.

But he attacked the proposed legislation as an attempt by 45 other states to force conformity on the five poll tax states, although there is "nothing immoral or illegal about a poll tax."

If the founding fathers had ever dreamed that a strong federal government would prescribe voting qualifications in the sovereign states, Russell said, they would never have adopted the Constitution.

Finch Threatened Wife, Friend Says

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Barbara Jean Finch was threatened by her estranged husband, wealthy Dr. R. Bernard Finch, the day before she was shot to death at her luxurious West Covina home, according to trial testimony Monday.

Minette Haber of Palm Springs, Calif., said Mrs. Finch called her July 17th "and asked if she could come down for the weekend." Mrs. Finch, 36, was slain the next evening.

Dr. Finch and his red - haired sweetheart, Carole Tregoff, are on trial accused of her murder.

"Barbara said she was afraid," said Mrs. Haber—"that she wanted to get away from Bernie."

"She said Bernie had been served with contempt of court papers, and he had called her and said, 'take those papers back within 24 hours or else'."

Mrs. Haber also told of meeting Miss Tregoff in February, 1959.

She said that the Finches were visiting the Haber's home.

"There was a phone call for Bernie," Mrs. Harber said. "After he finished Bernie said, 'Carole is going water skiing with us'."

She said Mrs. Finch seemed quite upset by the news.

"Within a half hour or an hour Miss Tregoff came to the house," said Mrs. Haber. "She had Dr. Finch's car and had a girl friend with her. We all went to the Salton Sea and went water skiing."

She said that in the motor boat "Barbara got in back with me and Carole got in front with Dr. Finch."

Earlier, Miss Tregoff's stepmother, Gladys Tregoff, told how Carole once cried on the witness stand when asked if she had been intimate with Finch.

But Mrs. Tregoff couldn't finish her testimony. She bowed her head and cried.

Tears ran down Carole's cheeks, too, as Mrs. Tregoff was excused from the stand.

It was at Finch's preliminary hearing last July 29 that Miss Tregoff first told of her love for the handsome physician—and admitted, finally, that she had been intimate with him.

Arms Fund A Record For Britain

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

LONDON—Britain will boost defense expenditure this year by more than a third of a billion dollars to the highest peacetime level in her history, authoritative sources said Monday night.

The government will call for increases in expenditure of from $336 million to $42 million, officials said.

Defense Minister Watkinson's estimates thus will break away from the figure of $4.2 billion that has been the average since fiscal 1957-58.

Explanation for the rise may be found in most of Prime Minister MacMillan's speeches in the last year. He invariably warned that Britain must keep her guard up.

There are three principal reasons why keeping a guard up will be more expensive: Cost of nuclear deterrent is increasing; great emphasis is being placed on reequipment of conventional forces ,and three has been a general increase in costs.

Red Chiefs Will Open Talk Today

MOSCOW (AP) — An Eastern summit meeting of Communist party chiefs opens in Moscow Tuesday to discuss agricultural problems. But the Soviet-West German dispute will form a backdrop.

A letter sent by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to Premier Nikita Khrushchev last month and the Soviet leader's reply will be published in the press Tuesday morning.

Adenauer's letter, made public in Bonn Monday, called on Khrushchev to live up to his words of peace by giving the German poople self-determination in working out unification of West Germany and Communist East Germany.

This, said Adenauer, would settle the Berlin question automatically without "the artificial construction of a 'free city' " in West Berlin as Khrushchev proposes.

There also is the letter sent to Adenauer by Walter Ulbricht, chairman of the East German Communist party, warning Adenauer to abandon the idea of outfitting the West German army with rockets suitable for launching nuclear weapons or expect East Germany to acquire such weapons from the Soviet Union.

The German question seems certain to be the main point for discussion by the top-level delegates in their private talks outside the formal agriculture meeting.

It is the key point going before the May summit conference in Paris.

Air Crash Probers Find Bomb Clues

(Copyright 1960 by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—The theory that an explosive caused the National Airlines crash in North Carolina Jan. 6 is gaining strength daily.

So is the theory that the detonation occurred at or very close to the seat occupied by Julian Andrew Frank, the New York lawyer whose body was found almost 20 miles from the main wreck.

Frank has been the focal point of the inquiry not only because his body was found far from all the others but also because he had taken out heavy insurance in recent months and because his financial dealings were under investigation by Dist. Aty. Frank S. Hogan of New York.

Informed sources reported these additional pieces of evidence Monday:

The under portion of the seat upholstery of one of the three seats found near Frank's body was shredded. The damage looked as though it could only have been caused by a bomb.

The flooring under the same seat had a sizable hole in it.

A portion of the metal tubular framework of the same seat was violently distorted.

An imprint of the fabric pattern of an of an airliner seat was found on Frank's hips.

Tiny fragments of metal no thicker than a pinhead were found imbedded in Frank's body. Similar fragments were found in a life jacket apparently installed under a seat.

MacArthur Examined by Ike's Surgeon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Army Surgeon General Leonard D. Heaton, who operated on President Eisenhower for ileitis in 1956, flew here Monday from Washington to examine ailing Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Gen. Heaton said in a medical bulletin after seeing MacArthur at Lenox Hill Hospital that there have been indications of some degree of kidney involvement in the illness but the "exact nature of this can be determined only by further study."

Heaton examined MacArthur with Dr. George G. Slaughter, a civilian urologist. They informed Mrs. MacArthur of their conclusions before releasing the bulletin which repeated an earlier disclosure that the general has a "simple nonmalignant enlargement of the prostate gland which resulted in interference with normal urinary functions."

Both said the general had shown "gradual improvement" since entering the hospital Friday. They said they anticipated his continued recovery.

Their statement said it was too early to determine whether surgery would be necessary to correct the prostate condition.

MacArthur Sunday had been reported in improved but still serious condition. He is expected to remain in the hospital for at least two weeks.

Clear Board for Charlie

Charles Rogers, 69, climbs down from the cab of the engine of Southern Railway's Royal Palm for the last time after three more years than a half-century of service. Egleston Rezoning to Get Public Hearing Feb. 25

Another public hearing on the controversial Egleston rezoning proposal will be held in City Hall Feb. 25.

At the upcoming hearing, rezoning of property on Field road, NW, also will be aired.

The proposals call for erection of 1,000 low-rent Negro public housing units in Atlanta to help relocate families displaced in a multimillion-dollar urban renewal program.

ZONE PANEL TO SIT

Members of the aldermanic board's zoning committee, headed by Alderman Milton Farris, will hear both sides, Col. Wyont Bean, planning engineer for the joint Atlanta-Fulton County Planning Board, said.

Announcement of the hearings followed a meeting of the board of aldermen Monday at which Alderman Jimmy Vickers offered a proposal to require advertising of any such rezoning in daily newspapers of general circulaton in the future. The Vickers effort was sent to the zoning committee for a recommendation.

The joint planning board already has approved both rezonings—apartment zoning for the 14 acres formerly occupied by Egleston Hospital on Forrest road, NE, and the 50 acres off Field road, just north of Bankhead highway.

TWICE APPROVED

The planning group approved the Egleston proposal twice, once last fall before it was turned down by a vote of aldermen and just recently after it was re-offered.

Strong neighborhood opposition resulted in defeat for the Egleston proposal, and opposition is anticipated for the Field road project.

The Atlanta Housing Authority would build both projects and would act for the city in the Urban renewal program, under existing plans. Leaders have contended provision of adequate and suitable homes to house families displaced in the renewal program is a condition precedent to execution of the vast rebuilding planned for the blighted downtown area bordering the central business district.

Alderman Farris was out of the city Monday, but will return in time for the hearing, it was reported.

In addition to Farris, other members of the zoning committee are Alderman Lee Field, Hamilton Douglas and Charlie Leftwich.

A new and different Atlanta Paper to be published soon. Watch for details.

City to Apply Code to 5 in Renewal Suit

Atlanta's urban renewal director said Monday that the city feels "free to go ahead and apply the housing code" against five property owners who had attacked it in Fulton Superior Court.

Col. Malcolm Jones said his office has received "several complaints" against the property owners who questioned the constitutionality of the new housing code in a court suit.

Up to now, Jones said, "we've had to ignore the complaints" because the city was under a court order restraining it from enforcing the code against the five property owners.

JUDGE'S RULING CITED

Jones said the city feels free to proceed in light of Fulton Superior Court Judge Ralph Pharr's refusal to enjoin the city from enforcing the code.

Judge Pharr issued an interlocutory order in response to the suit filed by the National Realty Corp., the B-X Corp., L. A. Blandenberg, Benny Liberson and Ben G. Statham.

The property owners had questioned the constitutionality of the housing code which empowers the city to inspect property and order the owners to repair or raze substandard housing.

CASE APPEARS OPEN

Judge Pharr's ruling declared that "it does not appear" that the code "is being unconstitutionally enforced against the plaintiffs." That apparently leaves open for possible further court action the question of the code's constitutionality.

Jones said the five plaintiffs own "at least" 450 pieces of property.

Laos Election Set April 24

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — A general election in Laos has been fixed for April 24, it was announced Monday. Eight deputies of the pro-Communist Neo Lao Haksat party, including Prince Souphanouvong, will remain in prison for conspiracy.

Troup Ministers Ask Vandiver To Save Schools

LAGRANGE (AP)—The Protestant ministers of this Troup County seat Monday joined appeals to the governor and Legislature to keep the public schools open.

The LaGrange Ministers Assn., at a meeting attended by 21 of its approximately 30 members, unanimously urged that legislation be enacted forthwith "to guarantee all children of Georgia uninterrupted public school education."

The plea was telegraphed to Gov. Ernest Vandiver and the Troup members of the Legislature. The Rev. Judson Jackson is head of the association.

The Grand Canyon of the Colorado River extends for 217 miles, with a width on the rim of over 18 miles.

Baptist Pastors, U.N. Council Appeal to State to Save Schools

A Baptist pastor's group, a local United Nations organization and a Presbyterian minister Monday urged the continuation of Georgia's public schools.

Meanwhile, this district's member of the State Board of Education was telling a group of DeKalb citizens that it was his first duty to uphold state laws, which call for school closings in the event of integration, in the current school controversy.

The Atlanta Baptist Pastors' Conference passed a resolution urging the General Assembly "to give support to the preservation of our public schools." The resolution was unanimously adopted by the 150-member group at a meeting at Georgia Baptist Hospital.

The Rev. Dr. Harry Fifield, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, said it was the church's role "to speak out with all its facilities" in support of public education. Dr. Fifield made his remarks at a luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Council of Churches.

In a statement released by the U. N. Council of Atlanta, Gov. Vandiver was urged "to take action which will not only permit Georgia to grow and progress but will contribute to the vitality of democracy throughout the world."

"Georgia must have public schools," the statement began.

John J. McDonough, president of the Georgia Power Co. and Fifth District member of the state school board, told a group with a petition signed by 836 parents in the DeKalb County Medlock School community that he was bound to uphold state laws.

The petition asked that everything possible be done to keep Georgia schools open.

Taipei Weather Men Blasted on Forecasts

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) — The Taipei Weather Bureau was under attack for confusing forecasts Monday. Sunday one forecaster predicted rain for the next two or three days and an hour later another forecaster said skies would be clear. There was no rain but the city was blanketed under heavy clouds.

Today on Peachtree

By Bread Alone?

We're speaking nutritionally, naturally, but a man practically can live by the bountiful loaves in Davison's Oven Heaven. Our daily breads are as numerous as the days of the week: Butter Bread, a crusty home style loaf made with country butter, 22c; V. O. High Protein, just 44 calories per slice, 29c; Cinnamon Raisin, vanilla-frosted like a birthday cake, 35c; Whole Wheat made with molasses; and Salt Rising like Grandma tried to make, each 25c; deluxe Rye with caraway seeds and French with poppy or sesame, 25c each. And, the champagne-caviar-and-truffles of the bread world, our exclusive Cheese Bread, at 40c, so celebrated it once rated a proposal of marriage for our Restaurant Manager. This brings us to the newest comer to our Bread Box, loaves we didn't make but wish we could—the famous, inimitable from The Abbey of Our Lady of the Holy Ghost at Conyers. This crusty brown wheat bread is made from a centuries-old Trappist recipe. Brother Vincent, the Baker-in-Chief, who has been a Trappist monk for 30 years, takes great pride in making every loaf perfect. We think it tastes so heavenly because the leaven in the dough is the love and praise and prayer that is a monk's daily bread. Monastery bread comes to us fresh from Brother Vincent's ovens, three times a week, but because it is making its debut in "Today on Peachtree" there's a special shipment today. Just 35c a loaf in Oven Heaven, on Davison's. Mezzanine. Try it!

Monastery Bread

High Flying Welcome

Our penthouse, where our store family gets its summer suntans, is bleak and Wintry—awnings down, deck chairs stashed away. But tomorrow, Wednesday, at 12:15 p.m. flags (Confederate and Georgia) will wave, confetti rain, and balloons will float in the high-flying-est welcome in history. V.I.P.'s from the Legislature, cotton tycoons, officials of Davison's, the press and TV will be on our rooftop as Sandra Lee Jennings, 1960's Maid of Cotton, drops, quite literally, out of the blue. From the Municipal Airport, Sandra will be wafted by helicopter over the skyscrapers, past the Capitol's golden dome and (ceiling, winds and weatherman willing) will put down neatly on our roof. Look up, up tomorrow around noon and you'll see the helicopter waltzing gracefully down. For a closer closeup of its gorgeous passenger, come to Davison's-McCall's Fashion Shows Thursday, 12:15 and 1:15 p.m., 6th floor Restaurant, and 3:15 p.m. in the Fabric Centre, 3rd floor, to meet the "Maid" and see our parade of air-borne cottons.

For another glamorous, ringside view of "The Maid," and a brilliantly staged Davison's Fashion Show, come have a ball at the 3rd Annual Cotton Cotillion, Friday evening, Piedmont Driving Club. Proceeds benefit Henrietta Egleston Hospital for Children. Still time to make reservations: call Mrs. Hughes Schroder, CE. 3-6612.

The clickey-click of patent pumps on Peachtree is as reliable and perennial a sign of Spring as golden daffodils. But it is glad, good news in this Spring of 1960 that patent is turning up everywhere you wear shoes—country to suburbia to Big City. On this page are patents at the extreme ends of the pole—from the flattest of fancied-up flats to the spikiest of dressed-up heels. Your glow sign to Spring points now to Davison's and to: Easy Goers patent leather flats with mother-of-pearl decorated buckle, 8.95; and to Foot Flairs' pointed toe pumps of black patent with honeycomb buckle; tall or middling heels, 13.95. Both AAAA to B, up to size 10. Shoes, Fashion Mezzanine. Foot Flairs also Lenox.

De Gaulle Victory Strengthens France

Gen. de Gaulle has won a tremendous victory. The Western nations share in it. France is saved for the time being from the shame and disaster of civil war joined by disloyal elements of the army.

As the die-hard colonials left the barricades in the city of Algiers, they knew why they had failed. But they also knew that a considerable number of the army which watched them depart was sullen and not in agreement.

The army, which slowly has come to detest the mainland French, is a force sick with the memory of defeat in 1940 and with losses in Indochina and Suez in our time. It is an army which has lost all touch with the mainland. For a decade and a half it has been fighting or on duty in Africa. It no longer feels it is an arm of the government or of the nation. It has come to think of itself as a separate force with no real tie to France. There is not much doubt this was its mood in the present crisis.

But enough officers remained loyal to Gen. de Gaulle. They reminded the army of its own honor and its oath. Meanwhile, in France there was no rebel support. There was, instead, outspoken resentment against the attempted revolt. In 1958 there had been great endorsement of the revolt in Algeria and France. Now the Fascist mood has cooled.

Gen. de Gaulle has brought about this change. Even those who do not like him know that if he goes then chaos follows. In a very real sense he can say and has indeed said, "L'etat, c'mois." He is the state. He alone by his will and his demands that France turn toward greatness holds power because there is no one to replace him. For the moment he is one of those rare persons, an indispensable man.

Now he needs some luck.

The Algerian rebels now know that had they agreed to a parley some months ago the colons would have betrayed them. But Gen. de Gaulle has maintained his freedom-of-choice proposal. If the rebels will now agree to an armistice and the setting up of machinery for determining the future of their country, they can further assist him. He has earned such support. He has promised these choices . . . independence, a close relationship with France, or membership in a commonwealth system.

The army will remain a major problem. It will not like De Gaulle's plan any better. But it could be, if it will, a force to assist the establishment of a new era for France by freeing her from the drain of war. It could become the proud arm of a rehabilitated state.

Parking Bans Are Vital To Atlanta's Prosperity

The Traffic and Transportation Commission will hold a public hearing Tuesday on proposed around-the-clock parking bans on segments of Mitchell and Whitehall streets.

There is opposition to the suggested action just as there has been to imposing similar bans on other streets.

The issue boils down to whether curb space will be used to accomodate a few parkers or whether such space will be used as lanes to expedite the flow of traffic, thus serving thousands of motorists each day.

Merchants often oppose parking bans, fearful a hardship will be created for prospective customers.

But a far greater danger lies in the fact that traffic strangulation will result in heavy losses to those same business concerns along with others in the downtown area.

Atlanta has precious little street room. Unless it's put to the best use possible, which is for the movement of traffic, the core of the city will suffer immeasurably.

We'll Take a Chance On Side of the Sun

As the husband left for the office his wife remarked casually, "Do you know what day this is?"

He stared into space and then replied, "Of course, I remember."

All day long he searched the files, called memory, but in vain. He couldn't recall that the day had any special significance.

But to stay on the safe side, he carried home flowers and candy and greeted his wife with, "You see I did remember what day this is."

"You certainly did remember," she said sweetly. "You have made it the happiest Groundhog Day of my life."

We, too, remember.

And today we're on the side of the shadow.

After a January with scarcely a glimpse of the sun, we'll take our chances on superstition and wish for the groundhog a tan.

A bright February day with the temperature in the high 60s would make this the happiest Groundhog Day of our lives, thank you.

Driver Incompetency Is Worst of All Hazards

Georgia has 1,700,000 licensed automobile drivers. Roughly half of these have never taken a driver's test. They obtained licenses in the first years of the establishment of a department of public safety when examinations were not required.

On the basis of records which show that about 30 per cent of all those who take driving tests fail the first one, it is estimated that perhaps 425,000 drivers in the state are not qualified. They are a danger to themselves and other persons on the highways.

Excessive speed and alcohol are factors in many highway accidents. But, say State Patrol experts, the cause of most crashes is the incompetency of the driver. Many do not hear or see well; their reflex actions are slow, they panic at the slightest emergency; they do not know the routine rules of signaling, they turn from the wrong lane, and commit a multitude of violations which are dangerous.

Almost 1,000 lives were lost on Georgia highways last year—and the year before. Many thousands were injured. In the nation about 38,000 were killed and many more thousands wounded. The property loss was in the billions. Yet we continue to regard driving as a sort of game in which, if we can outwit the traffic officer or the highway patrolman, we are doing nothing wrong. The "sin" is getting caught. This silly state of mind contributes to the deaths and the injuries. We need strict enforcement and continuing education in the subject.

Will Excuses Suffice To Cover Missile Lag?

The big debate about the relative military strengths of the United States and the Soviet Union still is in full swing. Secretary of Defense Gates sticks to his position that in over-all power the United States is ahead although he admits the Russians will have "moderately more" missiles in production and in operation than this country until we begin to catch up in 1962.

On the other hand, a number of congressional leaders are voicing alarm. Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson said Saturday the Soviet Union will have an "enormous advantage in missile striking power in the near future." He gave as the source of his information a briefing by CIA Director Dulles.

We cannot help but believe that Secretary Gates' view is too optimistic. We are probably not in any great danger as of now, but if the lead is widened—and the long-range rocket tests the Soviets are conducting in the Pacific give no comfort—there will be a real danger to this country in the next two or three years.

While there is no reason for panic, there certainly is ample cause to be concerned about apathy and excuses about our lagging missiles and space programs.

Youths' Morality Drops In Small Towns, Too

There is considerably more publicity about youths in large urban areas getting into trouble than there is about teenagers who run afoul of the law in smaller communities.

Larger numbers of teen-agers live in thickly populated areas than in the sparsely settled sections. It also can be argued that there are more temptations in the large cities.

Therefore, the findings of a nationwide survey conducted by the Lutheran Research group are rather surprising. Its report not only cited a lowering of teenage morals in small towns but said there is some evidence that the decline in morality among rural church groups is more pronounced than among those in urban areas.

Results of the survey reflect the fact that parental neglect is a nationwide problem rather than one confined to cities.

But regardless of the locale, the depraved acts of a minority cast an unfair blight upon teen-agers as a whole.

On the plus side, though, in preventing delinquency are programs such as the one conducted by Fort Valley Police Chief Grady Cochran. He is doing an excellent job of teaching respect for law and order through his Junior Police Department. He can point proudly to the absence of a juvenile delinquency problem in Fort Valley. He recommends such a program for every town in Georgia. We heartily concur, regardless of the size of the community.

Civil Rights Plan Hits at Voter Bias

WASHINGTON—There is a good prospect that a strengthened civil rights bill will pass Congress this session and Atty. Gen. William Rogers' careful, new proposal to protect Negro voting rights increases the prospect. To those who want to practice voting discrimination against Negroes the attorney general's plan will be anathema because it would make discrimination more difficult.

To those who want to end voting discrimination but who do not want to see any federal encroachment upon states' rights which can be avoided, the attorney general's plan should be welcome because it disturbs the existing balance between state and federal authority just as little as possible.

The heart of the Rogers proposal is that after a federal district court has found that there is a "pattern or practice" of such discrimination, it shall have the duty to see that its judicial ruling is carried out.

The court's means of enforcing its ruling would be to appoint "referees" to determine whether individuals have been denied their voting rights. These referees would receive complaints, determine voting qualifications, after which the court, if it agreed, would then issue an order binding on local election officials.

Under these procedures it seems to me that the attorney general can justifiably say that his proposed bill is especially desirable because it would operate within the established judicial framework and would supplement and give effect to existing legislation; namely, the Civil Rights Act of 1957.

In my judgment those state officials who want to deny to Negro citizens the constitutional right to register and vote are the most reckless opponents of states' rights.

Thomas Jefferson was a great advocate of states' rights but he believed that states' rights should never be used to deny human rights. If those state officials most active in denying voting rights really believed in states' rights, they would not pose the dilemma of forcing the federal government to cut back some states' rights or to condone discrimination. When states' rights are used to shield denial of the federal right to vote, then in the end states' rights will suffer.

This is why Atty. Gen. Rogers' plan to keep the enforcement of the Civil Rights Act of 1957 in the hands of the federal district courts, instead of putting it in the hands of the nonjudicial executive branch of the government, is wise and welcome.

State Legislators Urged To Apply Reason Instead of Emotionalism in School Decision

Atlanta—Attention legislators: As the debates and discussions over the issue, segregation versus integration in the Georgia school system, go on, I ask but one thing of you in making your decision about closing the schools. That is that you do not sacrifice your reason to blind emotion. The logic of the mind is the only thing that has raised man to a civilized society. Emotionalism will place Georgia back in the Dark Ages.

Most of you have gotten into office by means of the emotions of your voters. I ask that you now appeal to the best within them, their minds, in helping to make your decision. Present them with facts rather than wide generalities about the consequences of closing the schools and let the people decide rationally whether or not they want their children educated.

Just as you would not remove a child's eye to protect him from seeing ugliness, do not take away his highest possession, his mind, to keep him from seeing truth.

Nothing is impossible when man accepts his mental ability as his moral responsibility. As a mother and a former teacher in the Georgia schools I ask you to do just this. Accept your responsibility. Do not deprive our children of their rights to become thinking individuals. At all costs keep Georgia schools open.

Has Payola Scandal Been Whipping Boy?

McDonough — Perhaps I am stupid but it beats me why our national leaders concern themselves with payolas, TV fixes, extravagant advertising on TV and like issues which seem small to me compared to other matters really needing their attention. It is possible that TV is being used as a whipping boy to distract the attention of the public from serious, even dangerous issues? It seems to me more emphasis should be placed on the following:

Waste and theft of public funds at national, state and county levels. This is a national scandal in itself and even more so when thieves are apprehended and seldom punished.

Our missile lag and waste of huge sums building rockets which fizzle when it seems that submarines, long-range missiles and big bombers are more necessary than rockets to the moon to our national survival.

The long strike that endangered our economy and was allowed to drag along until such time that a settlement could be used to boost the prestige of a national political figure.

Criminals being allowed to force their rackets into every business and organization.

The infamous farm program forcing the small farmers away from their way of life into urban areas where, unskilled in any other trade, they often become burdens on welfare agencies.

Atlantan Says Society Needs a Don Quixote

Atlanta — What our fragile society needs foremost today is a modern Don Quixote. It is appalling to see women beaten to transit seats daily and to witness maximum profanity in their presence with total disregard to feminine honor. I haven't seen a man tip his hat to a woman since the war. This is an obviously discarded custom now.

Every woman representative of all social, vocational and residential classifications is entitled to conventional respect from men. All Spain laughed at Cervantes' Don Quixote in his vain effort to uphold womanhood. Today, we cry for "Don" to return.

Current Legislature Praised for Courage

Albany — A recent letter to The Constitution roars out this rhetorical profundity: "What sort of Legislature is it that gives standing applause to — 'We will resist — we will exhaust every legal means and remedy available to us?' "

For the writer's benefit we can assure him it is the same kind of legislature that stood up and cheered Patrick Henry when he thundered forth in the Virginia House of Burgesses "I know not what others may think, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

We therefore ask H. Hilton Smith of Moultrie, Ga., is it his opinion that the people of the South today do not have as much backbone in the face of tyranny as their forefathers?

School Closing Opponents Stir 'Like Wind in Trees'

In the Dalton Citizen

Georgia solons now in session under the gold-plated dome of the State Capitol are, we feel certain, giving this matter of Georgia education and the public school system some mighty hard thinking. While it is true that there are no large amounts of outspoken thoughts by many of them the subject must weigh heavily on the mind of each individual who is a senator or representative.

Each man is well aware of the fact that within his own hands may rest the future of our schools. That same future broadens far beyond academic learning itself. It broadens to the scope of including everything that would aid in the further development and progress of just about every category imaginable within the confines of the Empire State.

It is gratifying to read where more businessmen, more industrialists and just plain old John Q. Public himself is getting more concerned about the situation and is beginning to become more outspoken. The shadow is casting itself more sharply over the state and where the shadow is the real substance cannot be far removed.

Facing the issue, many people are wanting to be heard. Those who have remained quietly by, hoping it wouldn't happen, are beginning to stir. It is like the wind rustling the leaves. It is evidence of action there.

We reiterate previous statements that closing the public schools would be a severe move and it is apparent that more and more persons all over Georgia are about to come to the same conclusion.

Closing the schools en masse when just one school is integrated is not the answer to the problem. It only creates other problems and really solves nothing, except as an action of evidence that Georgia, rather than seeking a workable solution, closed the doors of the public educational institutions in the face of her own children.

We trust Georgians will never let that happen.

C. of C. Is In Good Hands

To go to a Chamber of Commerce annual banquet and be bracketed by a minister who is the C. of C. president and an M.D. who is the incoming prexy is unusual. Unusual, I mean, that the minister and the medic should be willing to give of their time to lead in joint civic endeavor. But that's the way it is at Bessemer, home of iron and steel and Maxie Baughn.

The president was the Rev. Zeke Jordan, minister at the Presbyterian church in the Alabama city, and the new C. of C. executive is Dr. Weldon Ray. The executive secretary, by the way, is Lou Edmondson, born in Eatonton, Ga., and formerly on the journalism staff at the University of Georgia.

GOOD MEMORY: Weldon Ray told of walking through the ward at the hospital and seeing a five or six-year-old boy whose name he knew he should know.

To cover up the lapse of memory, the doctor asked, "Didn't I deliver you?"

And the boy replied, "You sure did, Doc. Last year when I broke my arm."

HIS CUT: Frank Malone, phone company veep, adds one to the "deducts" story.

This fellow had been having the employer take out for a $25 Savings Bond, then as soon as he got the bond he cashed it.

One week he told payroll, "You can start taking out for a $50 bond."

They did and he went right to the bank and converted the bond to cash.

Asked why he did that, he explained, "You see my wife gets the take-home pay every week and I get the 'deducts'."

NEW MEANING: A "go-cart" meeting such as was publicized the other day in the Calhoun Times is not a session of the perambulator set. It's an outing of folks, young and old, who take to these lawn mower motors on pushmobile frames.

HIGHLINES: A man, there was, who prided himself over the years of driving a car free from accidents, but one day he lost control of his automobile. That day he taught his son how to drive.—John T. Dennis, Elberton Star.

We're working on a scheme to get a state legislator on the Tift County grand jury the next time the jury meets to set wages of the jurors. For the past 15 or 20 years the jury pay scale has been $3 per day with no travel expenses granted and we hesitate to believe that a state legislator is worth more than 13 times as much as his country cousin serving on the county jury.—"Bub" Lang, Omega News.

Many Are Victims Of Needless Fears

There was once an ancient city which was besieged by a foreign army. The siege continued for many days and there was great fear in the hearts of the citizens. They felt that their city was doomed and that finally all of them would perish. In time a great famine came upon the city. The enemy troops permitted no one to leave and no one to enter.

The famine became so tragic that two mothers agreed that their children should be butchered and then eaten! One mother actually did this but when it came time for the second mother to keep her pledge she reneged. Well, things in that city came to such a tragic state that the people knew of no better way to withstand certain starvation. And the king, greatly troubled and fearful, put sackcloth upon his back and walked slowly back and forth upon the city's walls.

Beyond the city's walls were four lepers. Because they were diseased, the citizens would not permit them to live with other people. These lepers also suffered hunger. They depended upon passers-by to give them alms and now no one came their way.

At last these lepers began to consider thoughtfully their desperate situation. They could not go through the gates and besides if they could they would find no food. So they concluded that they might just as well surrender to the enemy. What if the enemy killed them? They would die of starvation, anyway.

Off, toward the enemy camp the four lepers went. They walked slowly and fearfully. At last they reached the tents of the enemy. They moved ahead with their arms upraised in a gesture of surrender. But no one stopped them and no one fell upon them with deadly weapons. The camp had been abandoned. Not one enemy warrior was to be found.

The lepers did not pause to ask why or how. They rushed into the tents and they found food in abundance. After they had gorged themselves, they remembered the famine-stricken people within the fortified city and they returned to shout the news that a great battle had been won without so much as the flexing of a soldier's muscle.

This is no cock-and-bull story from ancient lore. It is a historical narrative taken directly from the story of the Hebrew people and found in the sixth chapter of the second book of Kings in the Bible. The city under siege was Samaria. The enemy was the army of the Syrians.

I've retold this story for two reasons. One, to remind you that like our spiritual ancestors we, too, often suffer because of empty fears. The Bible tells us that God caused a great noise, like the sound of approaching armies, to put fear into the hearts of the Syrians so that they fled in panic. Second, to remind you of the many wonderful and exciting stories you will find within the covers of the Bible!

Housewife's Toil Is Mostly Self-Made

Women certainly are touchy, I'll say that for them. "Are you the man who wrote about women being awful housekeepers?" said the last outraged female voice on the phone which has been busy, busy. "Yes, ma'am." "Well you just sit right back down and write that you're sorry!" she commanded.

Well, all right. I'm sorry that women are awful housekeepers but the fact remains—men could run a house twice as well with a quarter the effort of the average American woman today.

That's all I said and I cannot understand all the hubbub when it is quite apparent that women have not the slightest concept of system.

If you do not believe me, ask your husband.

Consider a neighborhood as it would be run by men. Would they waste time gabbling about, expending useless energy in needless motion, setting up obstacles to efficiency and in general clacking about in tight circles like an unusually giddy group of Rhode Island Reds?

No.

Within one week they would have things organized beautifully. The so-called "monotony" of housekeeping, which consists largely of seeing the same TV programs every day, would vanish.

The problem of being "tied down" with kids would be virtually eliminated — I guarantee you that some kind of group baby-sitting pool would be set up to free daddy any time he felt like riding down to see a movie or whatever.

And it would work.

Women have gotten American men so utterly buffaloed on the entire subject of housekeeping that most males pale at the thought of pointing out the absurdities surrounding us.

Like this subject right here—not one single woman, for instance, has proceeded to the heart of the matter — namely, that they run around like chickens.

Every single one has professed to believe this department said something about the end result of their work. Nay.

It said, and says, that most of it is made work. And I think they do it deliberately simply to have something to wring their poor itsy-bitsy mistreated hands about.

The deal is, I firmly suspect, to keep hubby from ever finding out what a gravy train the little woman rides.

And a good exhaustion act might even get the poor lout to do the dishes after he staggers in from a day of just labor.

Anyhow, I can't see what all the fuss is about. These things are entirely too obvious to argue about and anyhow my wife and the neighbor ladies are getting up a little party for me and I have to go.

It's sweet of them, I think, to throw the party, although I'm not quite sure what it is. What's a necktie party?

HIS LAUGHTER STILLED AFTER HALF CENTURY
Felix Adler in Familiar Clown's Costume

Felix Adler Dies; A Clown 50 Years

NEW YORK (AP)—Felix Adler, 62, one of America's best known clowns and a veteran of nearly half a century under the big top, died Monday while undergoing an operation.

He joined Ringling Bros. at the age of 13 and his entire circus life was with them. Last May he severed his connection with the show which had merged years ago with Barum & Bailey.

Generations of youngsters—and their parents — chortled over Adler's grotesque conformation, with its exaggerated padding behind.

For 30 years a little pig was part of his act.

He entered a hospital Jan. 15, suffering from ulcers and other internal disorders. He had an operation Jan. 23 and was operated on a second time Monday in an effort to check internal hemorrhages.

Adler was a circus buff as a boy. Poking around Ringling Bros. in 1909 during its visit to his home town of Clinton, Iowa, Adler fell asleep on one of the circus train cars. He awoke at the circus' next stop, Davenport, Iowa.

His father retrieved the boy and Adler was to joke in later years that that was his shortest season on the road. He joined the circus in 1910 as a helper in an animal act and later turned to clowning.

With Emmett Kelly, Adler became one of the best known circus performers in the world during his many decades under the big top.

Adler married for the first time 12 years ago and later his wife Amelia, became a clown and joined his act.

Alexandria Integrates 4th School

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — The Minnie Howard Elementary School, formerly all white, was integrated Monday without incident.

It became the fourth Alexandria school to be attended by both Negroes and white.

Five Negro students enrolled in the school on order of U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan.

Another school, Jefferson Elementary, also was to have received its first Negro student, but the girl, Eva Ann Cooper, 12, failed to show up. Her father, Clarence Cooper, said the girl would remain in Washington's Gordon Junior High School as he did not want her to change schools in the middle of the school year.

Two other Negroes, on order of Judge Bryan, entered schools which were integrated a year ago. One each enrolled in Ramsey grade school and Hammond High School which, along with Ficklin Elementary, were desegregated quietly last year.

The seven students, along with Eva Ann, were among 17 who had applied for entry to various Alexandria schools. Judge Bryan upheld the School Board's rejection of the others. The board had refused admittance to most of the nine on the grounds of low academic achievement.

Khrushchev Threatens Bonn Again

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

MOSCOW — Premier Khrushchev has warned Chancellor Adenauer that the Communist nations alone would fix all of Germany's borders if Moscow's free city plan for West Berlin does not meet with "understanding."

The Soviet leader in a letter to the Chancellor published here Monday restated his intention to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany if coming negotiations produce no change in Berlin's situation. He said again that this would be done "with all the attendant consequences" and added: "including for West Berlin."

Such a separate pact, Khrushchev declared, would "regulate" all of Germany's border "problems" with Poland and Czechoslovakia.

"It would be clear to everyone that with the signing of this treaty, to strive for a change in the existing borders would be nothing but to bring the case to war," he said.

Eager Witness Held in Holdup

An over-anxious witness Monday was charged with being a bandit as Atlanta police moved against a shotgun terrorist gang wanted in a series of holdups here.

Detectives N. W. Flanagan and R. E. Nickerson said the volunteer witness has been identified as a perpetrator in a holdup Saturday and also linked to a second armed robbery Monday.

He was listed as Julius Burton, 21, Negro, of 89 Fort St., NE and was held at city jail on a suspicion of robbery charge.

The detectives said a second suspect, Franklin Sorrels, 24, Negro, was picked up later. They added that he refused to list his home address.

GROCERY ROBBED

Burton and Sorrels were arrested following the armed robbery of a grocery store at 43 Whitefoord Ave., NE. The detectives said they were told two Negro men entered the store, one puffing on a cigar—and carrying an automatic shotgun.

A customer, Richard Myers, of 2053 Edgemore Dr., NE, walked up as the bandits entered and was ordered inside. The detectives said the two lined up Myers and two employes, Fred Pelfrey Jr., of 835 Juniper St., NE, and Charlie Bryan, of 28 Whitefoord Ave., NE.

SMOKER WARNS THEM

"Stand still or I'll blow you half in two," the cigar smoker was quoted.

The detectives said the two forced Pelfrey to open the cash register, scooped up a handful of money and then strolled out. They said a woman accompanied by a small child drove up while the robbery was in progress, but saw what was happening and sped away.

On the way to the robbery scene, Patrolmen P. L. Mote and E. C. Carter said they stopped on Hardee street, NE, and asked a Negro youth if he had seen anyone run past.

"Yes, sir," he replied with a wave of his hand. "They went that way."

The patrolmen said they asked the Negro to get into the car and point out the route the two had taken. They said he complied and his information was verified by other persons.

The patrolmen then turned the witness, who they listed as Burton, over to Detectives Flanagan and Nickerson. The detectives said Burton was identified in a police lineup as the man who entered a store Saturday at 1328 DeKalb Ave., NE, purchased a candy bar and returned a short time later with two others to rob the store.

Bandits answering similar descriptions are wanted in a series of store robberies here, the detectives said.

A Car for Every Occasion— That's the New Look in Autos

"Specialized vehicles to satisfy different driving requirements" are being demanded by Americans, a Ford Motor Co. official declared here Monday night.

The all-purpose car will not be replaced, but "Americans are getting away from the idea of using one universal vehicle for everything from vacations and long-distance travel to a trip to the corner grocery store for a loaf of bread," Victor G. Raviolo, executive director of Ford's engineering staff, told the Atlanta Section, Society of Automotive Engineers.

Earlier, Raviolo said here that Ford could have a new rapid transit system—providing ground transportation up to 500 miles per hour—in operation within five years.

He described the "Levacar," air-propelled ground vehicle, as "a practical system for mass transportation in areas of high-density population."

In Atlanta to demonstrate the "Levacar," Raviolo emphasized he does not expect the system to come into use so soon.

The Cardiogram: Heart Detective

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

If a patient's heart stopped and you happened to have a cardiographic test in progress, the line on the chart would be a straight one.

This, by the way, has happened and sometimes the patient's heart has been started again, and, alas, sometimes not.

The point is that electrical impulses tell the heart when to beat. If they are not present, the heart does not beat.

In the normal state, there is, for an appreciable length of time, no electrical impulse, no voltage.

Then the impulse comes along, measured in a very small fraction of a volt, and the heart "beats." The impulse goes first to the upper portion of the heart and then, very swiftly, it is transmitted to the lower section of the heart. Remember that the heart has four chambers, two upper ones, or auricles, and two lower ones, or ventricles.

So, if you look at a cardiogram, you see a straight line (meaning no voltage) and then see a sudden, sharp upward movement, meaning that an electrical impulse has occurred. This makes the upper chambers of the heart react, or "pump."

Then the electrical impulse, in a split second, carries on downward and makes the lower chambers react.

The gap between the first and second pulse of voltage is important. So, too, of course, is the regularity with which the sequence occurs. If a patient has had a heart attack, very often there will be some delay between the two impulses.

The shape of the curve (and the shape simply records the rise and fall of voltage) is also important. For one instance, an attack of rheumatic fever will cause a prolonged time (relatively prolonged, although only a small part of a second!) between when the impulse reaches the upper and then the lower chambers of the heart.

It is entirely possible for the voltage, and the rhythm of impulses, to become highly deranged and yet improve again to a remarkable degree. That is why, at times, a whole series of cardiograms may be needed, showing whether the heart is gaining or losing.

A condition known as "heart block" in which, for one reason or another, the timing between the upper and lower chambers will vary, is another condition the cardiogram shows.

All of which gives us, I should say, some idea of the complexity of a cardiogram. The interval between impulses, the timing of the impulses, the intensity, the shape of the curves (meaning the rate at which voltage rises and falls) are all significant, and that's why a cardiogram is so useful — and so hard to explain, unless you go into all the meanings of the ups and downs of that line on the long paper tape.

Rocket Lead Of 3-1 for Reds Seen

the Soviet numerical advantage in long-range missiles "will not produce a gap in our deterrent power" because of "the versatility and strength of our over-all retaliatory capability."

Gates was supported in this judgment by Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. In a brief statement to the committee, Gen. Twining said: "I do not believe any nation today or in the foreseeable future has the military power to destroy us or to attack us without receiving unacceptable destruction in return."

Meanwhile, President Eisenhower, who flew back to Washington from a Western golfing vacation, sought to meet congressional criticism in another field by announcing he would ask Congress for an additional $113,000,000 to accelerate development of super-thrust rockets for space launchings. The President made the announcement during a stopover in Denver, Colo., en route to the capital from California.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has earmarked $90,000,000 of the supplemental request to speed development of the Saturn rocket — the cluster of rocket engines producing 1,500,000 pounds of thrust.

The Saturn project now will receive $230,000,000 in the next fiscal year, nearly the amount originally advocated by Dr. Wernher von Braun, whose team of missile scientists and engineers is building the super rocket.

An additional $15,000,000 will be allocated to the F1 or Nova rocket, the single-chambered rocket engine being developed to produce 1,500,000 pounds of thrust. The $8,000,000 remainder will go toward development of a liquid hydrogen rocket engine producing 200,000 pounds of thrust which will be used in the upper stages of the Saturn launching vehicle.

With the supplemental request, the space agency will be seeking $915,000,000 in new appropriations for the next fiscal year. This will be nearly double the appropriations received by the space agency in this fiscal year and closer to the money requirements estimated by congressional Democrats who have been accusing the administration of short-changing the space program.

In the military missile field, however, it was apparent that the administration was sticking to the defense of its military budget and had no intention of accelerating production of intercontinental missiles, despite the drumfire of warnings from Democrats that the nation was confronted with a dangerous "missile gap."

BILLY GRAHAM: Count Your Blessings and Pray

QUESTION: I have a good wife and seven healthy, happy children. I work hard, and can barely make ends meet. But my neighbors who have no children get a new car every year, are able to go on trips and eat much better than we do. I must confess I am a little envious of them. How can I keep from envying them?—K. L.

ANSWER: I wouldn't be surprised to find out that your neighbors envy you more than you envy them. By almost every measure, YOU ARE A RICH MAN. Happily married, a good wife, seven happy, healthy children, and able to work. You are one of the wealthiest persons in town.

The Bible says: "Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith." If you could stand back and look at yourself objectively, you would see you have every reason to be happy.

Perhaps you lack just one thing. The Bible says: "Better is a little with the fear (reverence) of the Lord than great treasure and trouble therewith." Your display of envy shows that you have a spiritual need. Slip to your knees tonight, and say: "Dear God, forgive me for being envious of my neighbor who in reality has much less than I. Help me to reverence Thee and to live for Thee." This will help you.

Cadillac

Craftsmanship a Creed...Accuracy a Law!

The legend above has been the inspiration—and the taskmaster—of Cadillac craftsmen for more than fifty years.

It is the statement of a philosophy that is unique in motordom—a pledge that no effort will be spared to make this the finest motor car it is possible to produce.

The men who are guided by this creed are uniquely dedicated to their craft.

More than half of them have served a full decade in the cause of Cadillac quality—and literally hundreds have celebrated their silver anniversary with the "car of cars."

Through every step of the manufacture of each Cadillac—including more than 1400 separate inspections—they lavish on it the fullest measure of care and skill and attention.

The result, of course, is a motor car whose quality is instantly recognizable.

It can be seen—in the snug, close-fitting look of every body line . . . and in the incredible smoothness and lustre of the car's chrome and color.

It can be sensed—in the perfect tailoring of its seat cushions . . . and in the faultless rhythm and harmony of its performance.

Yes, and it can even be heard—heard in the awe-inspiring silence of the car in motion.

We invite your critical appraisal of this 1960 product of Cadillac craftsmanship soon.

Your dealer will be delighted to provide the car and the keys—and to explain how practical Cadillac ownership has now become.

Paris, not local officials who might be sympathetic. Those insurgents would be tried who were found to have participated in an "attack on the internal security of the state," the spokesman said.

The investigations also apparently apply to all the men who were in the barricades at one time or another during the uprising.

The settlers' rising that began Jan. 24 with a street battle in which 20 died collapsed without another shot fired.

The insurgents were loaded into army trucks and taken to a camp near Algiers.

Down came the insurgents' barricades of paving stone and rubble—bristling symbols of their defiance of President de Gaulle's policy of self-determination for Algeria's nine million Moslems.

After De Gaulle's speech Friday commanding the army to restore order, the Algiers generals brought up overwhelming force Sunday. They cordoned off the insurgent camp in the center of the city from direct support of the civilian population.

MOBS FADE AWAY

When the showdown came, the screaming mobs that had cheered the insurgents with cries of "Algeria is French" were nowhere in sight.

Left in isolation, bombarded with leaflets and loudspeaker broadcasts, the defenders of the barricades gave in.

It was estimated that in all about 1,000 Frenchmen had marched out of the barricades. The rest slipped away during the night. At one time it was estimated that the men behind the barricades numbered 5,000.

GUARDS CRACK FIRST

Territorial guards, who had thrown in their lot with the insurgents, were the first to crack. They started leaving the barricades Sunday. Some marched out in groups. Others vanished into side streets.

The organized insurgent units were taken to a camp at Zeralda, 20 miles from Algiers.

In Paris the French government decided Monday to ask for broad special powers to clean up the aftermath of the rebellion. Parliament was called into an emergency one-day session Tuesday to approve the request.

TO BE LIKE SIEGE

The call for practically unlimited authority—which will be vested in the cabinet, not in the personal hands of President Charles de Gaulle—came quickly on the heels of the collapse of the revolt. But De Gaulle dominates the cabinet.

The special powers would give the government the right to legislate by decree for a limited period, probably about three months. One observer said it would be "like a state of siege, without the formal proclamation."

In some quarters expressions of relief at the collapse of the Algerian rebellion were deemed premature. It was felt the collapse can mean a good deal less than peace. In fact, some said it can mean intensified war in North Africa and rising tension through that area and the Middle East.

'PACIFICATION'?

President Charles de Gaulle's formula for eventual peace in Algeria depends upon what the French call "pacification." The word does not have a peaceful meaning, as the French understand it. Essentially, to the French it is a military term, meaning Nationalist Arab Moslem rebels in Algeria must be brought under control before De Gaulle can carry out his program.

Insurgent Europeans who left their posts behind the barricades in Algiers now are assigned to join army forces fighting the Nationalist Moslem Rebels.

To the rest of the Arabs in the Middle East and North Africa, to say nothing of others in colonial and formerly colonial Africa, this is going to look ugly.

Georgia Ranks 18th in Building Interstate Roads

Georgia has moved up seven spaces to rank 18th in the nation in the amount of interstate highways under construction or completed, Jim Gillis, chairman of the state highway board, said Monday.

Gillis said Georgia ranks fourth in the Southeast, following Florida, North Carolina and Virginia, with $88,571,000 spent or allocated for interstate projects.

Georgia is first in the Southeast and 12th in the nation in the total number of primary, secondary and urban projects started or completed since the Highway Act of 1956, Gillis added.

Villages Strafed In Costa Rica

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—The newspaper La Nacion said two unidentified planes had machine-gunned the villages of Santa Cecilia and Las Delicias on the Nicaraguan border Sunday. There were no reports of casualties.

Juan Bautista Lacayo, Nicaragua's ambassador, denied the planes were Nicaraguan. He said he had an official report that rebels based in Costa Rica had sacked the Nicaraguan village of Orosi. One Nicaraguan civilian was hurt, the ambassador said.

Atlantan Dies Of Gun Wound

Arthur Paul Kuettner, 27, of 56 Polar Rock Rd., SW, died Monday at Grady Hospital after being found wounded at his home.

Detective W. D. Browning said there was a bullet wound in Kuettner's head and a single-shot .22-caliber rifle was found near the body.

Funeral plans will be announced by J. Austin Dilion Co.

Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Kuettner, and two brothers, Edwin Kuettner, Americus, and Wuerner Kuettner, U.S. Army.

Inquirer Editor Guy Norton Dies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Funeral services will be held in suburban Oakmont Wednesday for Guy W. Norton Sr., nationally known newspaperman and retired editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Norton died Saturday in a home for the aged. He was 75.

He began his newspaper career with the Clinton, Mich., Republican and served for many years with the Hearst newspapers in Los Angeles, Boston, Denver, Chicago, Atlanta, Washington, New York and Rochester, N.Y.

Virginia Hailed For Private Plan

ty are operating on a $350,000 budget this year at a cost of $211 per student.

"The citizens of our county are well satisfied with the type of education their children are receiving. The children are happy and the teachers are also happy," he said.

The students of Prince Edward County, he said, are schooled in 15 buildings which includes 10 churches. Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Episcopal and Christian Churches have donated their buildings to the private school foundation.

Pearson said the establishment of the private schools was his county's only answer to the integration problem after the Supreme Court ordered the schools mixed there.

He drew thunderous applause and cheering when he said, "In no case would you want your city of Atlanta to degenerate to what Washington, D.C., is today."

After an earlier appearance before the General Assembly Pearson acknowledged to Fulton Rep. M. M. (Muggsy) Smith, however, that Atlanta would have a much greater problem in trying to set up a private school operation because of its size. Atlanta has some 146,000 public school students. There are some 1,500 in Prince Edward County's private schools.

Lt. Gov. Byrd assured the segregationist rally that he is with them in their fight to preserve segregation in Georgia's schools.

"I am with you in this fight. We are on the same team," he said.

He said that Georgia will not give up its fight and it has no thought of surrendering its schools as the hour of crisis mounts in the segregation-integration struggle.

Harris tore into Constitution Editor Ralph McGill, the NAACP, and HOPE (Help Our Public Education), proclaiming:

"If we lose this battle, Atlanta will be worse off than when ol' Sherman came to town."

Pearson's speech Monday night at the Tower Theater was sponsored by MASE (Metropolitan Assn. for Segregated Education).

2 Chinese Arrested For Rocket-Building

JOHORE, Malaya (AP) — Two Chinese students were arrested here because they tried to launch a space rocket they had made from directions given in an American science fiction magazine. Authorities estimated the 4-foot-long wood and steel rocket would have traveled about a quarter of a mile if it had been fired.

Kishi Hails Eisenhower Peace Push

TOKYO (UPI)—Prime Minister Kishi and Foreign Minister Fujiyama Monday backed President Eisenhower's peace plans to the hilt in the first major policy statements of the year by Japan's conservative government.

The statements came in addresses by the two officials at a plenary of the Lower House of the Japanese Diet.

Kishi expressed complete faith in American peace aims and made it plain that the U.S.-Japan security treaty formed the foundation for his government's foreign policy.

Concerning his recent trip to the United States and Canada, he said: "I was profoundly impressed by the extraordinary zeal and determination for world peace shown by the two heads of state, especially President Eisenhower."

He said Japan and America were pledged to "defend jointly the safety of their respective lands."

Fujiyama reiterated the Prime Minister's sentiments, then assailed the Soviet Union and Communist China.

He said the Russians had no right to interfere with Japanese policy in regard to the security treaty, referring to the Soviet note which refused to return to Japanese islands unless the treaty were scrapped.

Cadle's Indictment Is Thrown Out By Appeals Court on 3 Grounds duties, even though traveling at the expense of the state," Gardner added.

Cadle issued a statement saying he was "humble" and "grateful to a kind providence and the wisdom of the conscientious men on our Court of Appeals. I had faith and trusted all along that somewhere along the road of jurisprudence, justice would triumph."

Cravey said "it proves that right will always prevail and truth is chainless. My enemies, the Atlanta dailies, put my complete record under a powerful microscope and being unable to discover one iota of infection, had me and an associate indicted for only one reason, being returned to office by appreciative and trusting Georgians."

But Fulton Sol. Gen. Paul Webb announced he would attempt to secure a new indictment against Cadle and Cravey.

They were jointly indicted by a Fulton grand jury on charges of conspiring to defraud the state by assigning department employes to aid in Cravey's 1958 re-election campaign.

Cadle was convicted and sentenced to 3-5 years. Cravey has not been tried under the indictment.

At the time of the grand jury investigation, attorneys for Cadle and Cravey invoked a 1943 act allowing state officials a pre-trial before grand juries.

Both were allowed to enter the grand jury room but neither was allowed to bring an attorney with him.

That was one of the errors cited by the Court of Appeals Monday.

"The laws which give a person a right to be served with a proposed indictment and to appear before a grand jury carry the necessary implication that such person has any additional rights as may be necessary to the effective exercise of such granted rights, which would include the right to have counsel by his side . . ." the decision said.

The court also said the indictment was vague in its language.

It was necessary not only to charge employes were assigned to politicking but also to name them and set forth "the amount of money each was to expend in furtherence of the conspiracy," the ruling declared.

Finally, the court criticized the manner in which the indictment was received by the presiding judge in his private chambers.

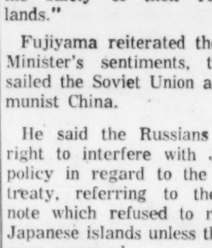

"The judge is the court for the reception of indictments only when he is presiding in open court," Gardner wrote.

But the Court of Appeals withheld a formal reversal on that point since the case was reversed on other points and "the error is not likely to be repeated."

3 Mental Health Bills Okayed

department on the alcoholism program.

Twitty said Gov. Vandiver plans to build a $2,750,000 psychiatric hospital on the 40-acre Briarcliff road, NE, tract where the commission's Atlanta clinic is now located. The clinic and the hospital both should be operated under the health department's mental health division, he said.

Rep. Eugene Holcombe of Cobb, who led the fight against the bill and then voted for it last Thursday, spoke in favor of the bill Monday.

Holcombe did not explain his vote of last week, but told the House he spoke against the bill "not knowing what it provided."

NOW CONVINCED

He said that during the weekend he "bothered to find out what the bill is really about" and was now convinced it was good legislation.

The scholarship measure approved by the Senate is a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment. If approved in the general election, the measure would authorize the Health Department to extend a maximum of four scholarships a year to state hospital personnel who desire additional training. Recipients of the grants would have to agree to at least two years' service at the hospital after the training.

RAISES ROSTER

The bill adding a psychiatrist to the Board of Health raises the board membership from 14 to 15. The governor will appoint the psychiatrist from two nominees of the Medical Assn. of Georgia.

The bill giving legislative sanction to the transfer of the state hospital means that any future transfer would require legislation.

In other mental health matters, the House Hygiene and Sanitation Committee unanimously endorsed a substitute commitment bill and recommended by a 9-3 vote the passage of a substitute "patient pay" or "family responsibility" bill.

Both bills originally were drawn by the interim mental health committee, which was headed by Rep. Culver Kidd of Baldwin.

VANDIVER-BACKED

Kidd told the committee Monday that the bills had been reworked several times and now had the endorsement of Gov. Vandiver, the governor's Advisory Committee on Mental Institutions, the state's ordinaries, the Georgia Association for Mental Health, and other interested groups.

The commitment bill would provide for uniform commitment procedure throughout the state and would specifically repeal old commitment laws and the 1958 act which was found to be ambiguous and impractical.

A major provision of the new law, Kidd said, is the provision that patients may be admitted to the state hospital voluntarily and without the loss of civil rights. At present, voluntary patients are accepted only in cases where they are willing to pay $50 a month to the state.

The patient pay bill, as now drawn, applies to patients at all medical institutions, including Milledgeville, Battey State Hospital at Rome, Gracewood School for Mental Defectives and the alcoholic clinic in Atlanta.

The bill provides that superintendents of the institutions would determine whether patients or relatives responsible for them are financially able to pay the state. Pay would be limited to the per diem cost of operating the institution.

No assessment would be made against property in any estate having a total value of $3,500 or less. Also excempt from the payments would be single persons with an income of $1,800 or less; the head of a household with annual income of less than $3,600," or any married person not being the patient, living with dependent spouse and whose annual income is $3,600 or less."

Brooks Sees Voiding of Unit Setup

Fulton Rep. Wilson Brooks said Monday he is "confident" that if some amendment is not made to Georgia's county unit system, some court will "knock out the entire system."

Brooks made the statement in urging all interested persons to attend a public hearing Wednesday before the House State of Republic Committee on his resolution to set up a legislative committee to study reapportionment.

AWAITS CENSUS

The measure calls for a study of reapportionment after the 1960 census is made, with the aim of providing more representation for more populous Georgia counties.

A number of House members, Brooks said, have "seen the wisdom and merit of my resolution and agree with me that something must be done to give more populous areas more representation in the General Assembly."

He added that his position is not only backed by other legislators, but is supported by positions U.S. Senators Talmadge and Russell took last year to the effect that the unit system should be amended in "justice" to larger counties.

QUANDARY POSSIBLE

Pointing out that the study resolution has "no effect at law," Brooks declared:

"I am confident that if something is not done towards giving larger counties more representation, some court of competent jurisdiction will knock the entire system out completely."

He added that it would then be "entirely possible" for candidates for the Legislature to be running "this summer" and not know what positions they are running for—if the unit system is knocked out.

Opens Campaign for Chapel

Gov. Ernest Vandiver Monday signed a proclamation urging Georgians to contribute to a Chapel of All Faiths to be built through church donations at Milledgeville State Hospital. Minimum Road Speed Zones Okayed by House Committee

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Ten highway safety measures, including on to allow the establishment of minimum speed zones on Georgia highways, were approved Monday by the House Motor Vehicles Committee.

Also included among the measures, which were all introduced by Rep. Tom Ellis of Henry County, were a number of bills aimed at cracking down on use of forged license tags or licenses belonging to other persons.

The committee also approved a bill offered by DeKalb County Rep. Guy Rutland Jr., which would provide for licensing of trucks on gross vehicle weight.

Rutland said that the bill, backed by the trucking industry, will bring the state $335,000 more in revenue, even though it is not intended as a revenue-producing measure.

The 10 highway measures which Ellis offered for the Department of Public Safety would:

1. Increase the penalty for driving without a license to make it a misdemeanor. The penalty is now a fine of $5 to $50.

2. Make it a misdemeanor to use a driver's license belonging to another person.

3. Increase the penalty for driving while a license is in suspension or has been revoked to a misdemeanor. It is now a fine of $100 or six months in jail.

4. Place on the statute books a law authorizing the department to allow other law enforcement units to use its radio system.

5. Allow establishment of minimum speed zones after engineering studies had been made. Col. W. P. (Bill) Trotter, safety director, told the committee the minimum speed zones would not be placed in areas of steep grades where trucks would have to "pull a hill." Trotter said the department "definitely" needs the law because it now has no authority to establish such zones.

COLLISON REPORTING

6. Require reporting of all collisions in which damage of $25 or more is involved. Present law only requires reporting of wrecks involving two or more vehicles where $25 damage is involved. Trotter said this would bring in reports on collisions with fixed objects. "Now a man drinking can drive his car down a bank and the damage might be $500 and he wouldn't have to report it," Trotter explained.

7. Define who has the right to free veterans licenses: veterans of the Spanish-American War, Mexican Border War, World War I, World War II and the Korean War, according to dates established by Congress.

8. Allow a police or emergency vehicle to cross the median or divider strips of multi-lane roads.

9. Permit the department to create a safety-education division at each post and to set up some form of driver training when funds are available.

10. Make it a misdemeanor for a citizen to represent himself as another person in taking a driver's examination or to forge a driver's license.

Trotter emphasized that the department has "had a lot" of license forging in the Atlanta area and finds that the offense is not covered by ordinary forgery laws.

The new bill on truck licensing, Rutland said, would give Georgia the same law that 35 other states now have. He said Georgia is the only state which now rates truck licenses on the basis of a manufacturer's empty rating.

FARM TAG $15

Rutland said need for the law was brought about by a ruling from the attorney general's office which he said, held that this rating can be established any time a truck is pulled on scales.

This means that all the mud, extra equipment, and dust which have collected on a trailer since it was purchased are included in the rating, Rutland argued.

Farmers using their trucks for strict farm use would only pay $15 for tags. Private carriers would pay up to $275 and for-hire carriers would pay up to $550.

Rates set in the bill for farmers would cut $180,000 of current revenue. But higher rates on commercial carriers would offset this and bring in $335,000 more than now comes in, Rutland explained.

House Panel To Consider School Levy

A House committee Tuesday is expected to take action on a Senate-approved measure to remove the 15-mill ceiling from county school operational taxes.

The measure, which has met strong opposition in the House, especially in the Ways and Means Committee, was to be reported on Monday.

A committee meeting—at which a subcommitte which has the bill was to report on it — was called off Monday because many committee members were tied up in other meetings.

Chairman Edgar Blalock of Clayton County said the committee would meet Tuesday at the luncheon recess.

Committee members took the position that the bill sets a "dangerous" precedent in giving county boards of education a "blank check" on taxes. They emphasized counties now have the power to call a referendum on removing the tax ceiling.

One legislator suggested that the measure is likely to develop into one of the "hottest" bills of this session, besides the now-approved withholding tax measure.

Senate Limits, Passes Prison Industries Bills

The Georgia Senate Monday approved a series of bills designed to put a prison industries program into operation, but not until it tacked on amendments to prohibit the sale of prison products except to the state.

The amendments will have to be approved by the House before the legislation can be sent to the governor for his signature.

As approved by the House originally, the bills would have permitted the sale of prison-made products to the state or to political subdivisions (counties and cities). The State Purchasing department also would have been directed to give priority to such products when buying for the state or its agencies.

Sen. Carl Sanders of Augusta, president pro tem of the Senate, said in presenting the bills Monday, however, that the legislation should contain sagefuards against the state's competing with private industry.

He offered several amendments the effects of which were to forbid sales to cities and counties and to confine the market for the prison-made goods to the state and agencies totally supported by the state. He also offered an amendment to require the Prison Industries Administration to give notice to private industries in event it should begin production of their particular lines. Public hearings would be held if there were objections from private industry.

The Senate Rules Committee earlier had amended the bills to "authorize," rather than "direct," the Purchasing department to give preference to the prison products.

The Senate approved all amendments before passing the bill to create the Prison Industries Administration by a vote of 38 to 2. Senators Charlie Brown of Atlanta and John Woodall of Woodland, voted against the bills.

Sen. Brown spoke against the prison industries program, contending it was "unfair to private industry."

He read two or three communications which he said he received from constituents. One letter writer called the proposal to create the Prison Industries Administration a "communistic bill."

"Although it (the program) may be needed at this time to correct a situation of which we do not approve (lack of prisoner rehabilitation), I still say it is unwise and unfair to private industry," Brown said.

Bill to Punish Unwed Mothers Is Blocked, 5-1

By a vote of 5 to 1, the House Welfare Committee Monday blocked Rep. Tom Palmer's bill to imprison or fine mothers of illegitimate children.

Rep. Henry Payton of Coweta County, acting committee chairman, said members felt the measure "is probably not constitutional."

Palmer, of Mitchell County, introduced the bill to make a second illegitimate birth a misdemeanor. His bill was, he said, a revised version of a similar measure introduced by Rep. Jack Ray of Warren County and defeated in the 1957 Legislature.

Syrians Reopen Fire, Move Up More Troops

two Syrian soldiers killed in an artillery and tank battle before dawn on the southeast shore of the Sea of Galilee, about 120 miles south of Metullah. The Syrians said the Israeli losses were heavy.

In Damascus, Syria's Maj. Gen. Faisal said troops of the United Arab Republic's first army had orders to "strike quickly against any new Israeli aggression on Arab farmers."

David Ben-Gurion, Israel's fiery old premier, told Parliament here his government would try to keep peace "but if there is no other alternative we will use force to ensure quiet in the same way we did this (past) night with arms."

He charged that Syrian soldiers disguised themselves as farmers and repeatedly penetrated Israeli territory in the demilitarized zone near the Sea of Galilee. Israel has been working on extensive agricultural reclamation projects in the general area.

The center of the ground battle was Tawafik, an Arab village in the demilitarized zone, which, the Israelis said, had been fortified with bunkers by Syrian troops.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Andre Demetz, chief of the French Army General Staff, Monday cancelled a trip to the United States scheduled to start this week.

State's Armories To Be Open to Public Feb. 20-22

National Guard units in 66 Georgia communities will open their armories and hangars to the public Feb. 20-22 during the nation-wide Muster Day exercises.

Maj. Gen. George J. Hearn, adjutant general, said some 11,700 members of the Georgia Army and Air National Guards will take part in the annual event honoring George Washington's birthday.

Hearn said the program originated in Colonial America when able-bodied men of the community were mustered on the village green once a year for roll-call and inspection of arms.

Patrol Bill Is Drafted Prepared

and it is now ready for Vandiver's signature.

Sen. Greer said Monday he has an unmarked-cars bill ready for its first reading in the Senate Tuesday. He said it would permit one unmarked car to be used by each of Georgia's 34 State Patrol stations. The unmarked cars would be manned by uniformed drivers and would be equipped with the standard red blinker lights and sirens.

The Department of Public Safety, backed by Gov. Vandiver, presumably wanted a much broader bill that would not necessarily limit the number of unmarked cars.

As late as Sunday afternoon, a key administration leader told The Constitution that the unmarked-cars proposal might be withdrawn. Or, he said, it would be strongly modified because of mounting opposition to it.

Sen. Greer said his bill "is a good bit different" from the original proposal.

He said he plans to introduce it "in deference to their (the Department of Public Safety's) efforts to save lives."

TO CALL HEARING

He said he would call a public hearing, probably later this week, to give the department a chance to air its reasons for wanting the legislation.

Several weeks ago, Gov. Vandiver gave the proposal strong endorsement. He said he thought it or anything else would be justified to curb the death toll on Georgia highways.

The Senate gave 42-0 approval of the idle funds bill after it heard high praise of State Treasurer George Hamilton and was assured that the bill held no discrimination for rural banks.

In presenting the bill, Sen. Robert Culpepper of Camilla, administration floor leader, said the measure simply expands the State Depository Board and clears the way for the state to draw interest on time deposits.

He indicated he had heard some expressions of fear that rural banks might get a bad deal as a result of the bill. But he said Treasurer Hamilton, who was in the Senate chamber at the time, would be on the Depository Board and "is one of the best friends rural banks ever had."

PASSES UNANIMOUSLY

Sen. Charles Smith of St. Marys said he would feel compelled to speak against the bill if Hamilton were not on the board. As it is, he said he is afraid banks will have to pass on to customers an increase in interest rates. If banks are going to pay 3 per cent on state time deposits, they may have to raise the rates they charge on loans from 6 per cent to 8 per cent, he said. (Such an increase would require legislation since interest rates are fixed by law.)

At one point, Sen. Smith moved that action on the bill be deferred until Tuesday, but after a quick consultation with Sen. Culpepper he withdrew his motion, and the Senate approved the measure unanimously.

Bills Before the Assembly

The following general bills and resolutions were introduced Monday in the General Assembly:

HOUSE

PARENT OPTION BILL—(Mackay, McWhorter and Rufland of DeKalb and others): HB No. 909—Providing that governor may issue an executive order or proclamation closing one or more public schools only after exhausting all lawful means of continuing operation in accordance with constitution and laws of Georgia, and only upon approval of majority of qualified voters among parents and guardians of children enrolled in threatened school, and providing parents dissatisfied with results of rerefendum may choose to have children transferred to another school, or may choose a tuition grant, and providing for subsequent referenda to determine if open school should be closed or closed school opened. (State of Republic)

INSURE NUCLEAR FACILITIES—(Barber of Jackson): HB No. 912—Authorizing the University System Board of Regents to procure liability insurance in the amount of not more than $250,000 covering the operation of nuclear facilities at any school under the control of the board. (University)

SENATE

(These bills have been introduced in the Senate.)

REPEAL OFFICIAL PRIVILEGE—(Brown of 52nd and others): SB No. 180—Repealing Code Section 89-9908, which provides that state officials may appear before and be heard by grand juries when an indictment against them is being considered. (Judiciary)

EXTEND PRIVILEGE REPEAL—(Brown of 52nd and others): SB No. 181—Repealing extension of Code Section 89-9908 which provide the attorney general and state official shall be notified of impending indictments charging misfeasance and malfeasance. (Judiciary)

VETERANS RETIREMENT—(Clary of 29th and others): SB No. 182—Excepting veterans otherwise qualified, who qualify for social security or retirement benefits under U.S. Code Title 10, from Employes Retirement Law provisions. (Rules)

CREDIT TEACHER SERVICE—(Jernigan of 5th): SB No. 184—Providing that teacher service outside of Georgia may be credited under Teacher Retirement System Act, providing additional method of qualification for credit of prior service, providing for reinstatement of teachers who have withdrawn, and providing for membership rights of teachers who did not join system in July, 1943. (Education)

UNLOAD OVERWEIGHT VEHICLES—(Greer of 6th): SB No. 187—Providing for unloading of vehicles in violation of state provisions regulating dimension and weight of motor vehicles at risk and under guard of owner or operator of vehicles, or providing a fee of not less than $25 may be paid and permit issued for completion of the trip. (Public Utilities and Transportation)

POLICE VEHICLE WEIGHT—(Greer of 6th): SB No. 188—Vesting police powers in State Highway Board, and authority to delegate authority and deputize, to enforce state provisions regulating dimension and weight of vehicles. (Public Utilities and Transportation)

HIGHWAY REPAIR FINES—(Greer of 6th): SB No. 189—Providing one-half of all fines and forfeitures paid for violations of provisions regulating dimensions and weight of motor vehicles on state highways will be paid to the state highway board for use to maintain highways and that such funds be in addition to regular appropriations, and that the remainder be paid into the county treasury where the violation is committed. (Public Utilities and Transportation)

CIVIL DEFENSE STUDY—(Clary of 29th and others): SR No. 100—Authorizing a study by the Senate Defense and Veterans Affairs Committee to investigate structures operations and facilities of Civil Defense and National Guard programs. (Defense and Veterans Affairs)

REPEAL FURLOUGH DRIVING LAW—(Brown of 52nd): SR No. 101—Repealing Resolution of 1945 providing that members of the military forces were authorized to drive without licenses during the period of their furlough. (Government Operations)

MacKay Says Vandiver Has Chance at Greatness

Members of the DeKalb branch of Active Voters joined in the public debate over schools Monday night.

DeKalb Rep. James MacKay told the group that Gov. Vandiver could become one of the most distinguished Georgians in history.

"But not unless he forges a policy on school integration and stops trying to please his executive secretary (Peter Zack Geer) or Roy Harris.

"I think that, before public education goes, segregation will have to give. We have two elements in Georgia who believe the same thing but are fighting each other. One wants to talk about non-interrupted public education, and the other wants to talk about segregation . . ."

MacKay and Sen. John Greer of Lakeland spoke at the meeting. It was held in Decatur.

Murphy said it was feared that provision might be unconstitutional.

He said the new statute is necessary because courts have held heretofore that a man could not be convicted of barratry unless he stirred up litigation on at least three occasions.

Car Fumes Kill Couple At Canton

CANTON (UPI) — A firm caretaker looking for cattle found the bodies of a young couple in a closed automobile on a lonely road near here, victims of carbon monoxide poisoning, Cherokee County Sheriff W. C. Huie reported Monday.

Huie identified the dead as Raymond Claud, 22, and Miss Shelby Ray Cantrell, about 22, both of Canton.

The death car was found in the middle of a dirt road off the Cumming highway, about 10 miles east of Canton. Huie said the ignition and headlight switches were on, the gas tank empty and the battery dead.

He said a caretaker on a farm owned by Sam Turner found the bodies while searching for some cattle Sunday night. The car appeared to have been mired down in mud, Huie reported.

Huie said the couple was last seen alive around midnight Saturday at a cafe some six miles from where the tragedy was discovered.

Cloud and Miss Cantrell were the fourth and fifth victims of carbon monoxide poisoning in this northeast Georgia area in the past three months. All of the victims died from the fumes while in tightly closed vehicles.

East Point To Look Into Airport Bid

East Point's legal department will investigate an Atlanta move to acquire property within East Point for additional airport expansion to provide for Eastern Air Line hangars.

The city council voted Monday night to have the legal department inquire into Atlanta's intention after Mayor Johnny Stith read a letter from Mayor Hartsfield in which Atlanta asked that East Point residents on the property be advised of the intention to build hangars there.

Hartsfield asked that East Point issue no additional building permits on the planned hangar site. The property involved adjoins the airport on Virginia avenue, southeast of the proposed expressway.

$44 Million Allotted for Expansion

The House signed a $44 million check Monday to pay the bill for Gov. Vandiver's expansion program.

The measure passed rapidly, 160-0.

As required by its rules, the House first dissolved itself into a committee of the whole to study the bill, took a committee vote, reported to itself and then voted again.

Rep. Frank Cheatham, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, told the House the bill was needed to finance the governor's proposals for schools, roads, mental health, prisons and ports.

The $44 million authorization is being made as an amendment to the 1956 Appropriations Act. To pass a new act at this time would automatically require allocation of some $20 million more to the Highway department — a figure Vandiver has said the state can't afford.

Thinned down by flu attacks, the House for the most part stuck to these non-controversial measures Monday:

1. It approved a new branch banking bill allowing banks one branch in cities of less than 40,000 population, two in cities of 40,000-80,000, and an unlimited number in larger cities.

2. It returned to the State of Republic Committee for further study a bill proposing a brand-new set of laws regulating the operation of motor boats.

3. It approved a bill providing that when a person serving a probated sentence has it revoked, the time served shall be subtracted from his sentence.

House Committee Stamps Don't-Pass on Lawyers Bill

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

The hotly controversial "lawyers' bill," introduced in the House by administrative leaders, was rejected by the House Judiciary Committee by a 10-to-9 "do not pass" vote Monday afternoon after one of the liveliest public hearings of the current Legislature.

The committee acted in executive session after hearing more than two hours of debate from lawyers who jammed the old supreme court room from all parts of the state to speak on the bill.

The bill would incorporate a Georgia Bar Commission, to which all practicing attorneys would have to belong.

Opponents of the bill were led by Rep. George Bagby of Paulding County, who termed the measure a "silk stocking lawyers' bill, aimed at integrating the Georgia Bar."

Newell Edenfield, an Atlanta attorney and president of the Georgia Bar Association, was chief spokesman for the proponents of the bill, which he said was drafted at the instigation of the bar association and had the approval of lawyers throughout Georgia.

Judge J.M.C. (Red) Townsend of the Georgia Court of Appeals, invited by committee chairman Charles Gowen of Glynn County to speak without having his time charged to either side, said he favored the bill basically but found certain objections to it.

His first objection was that the measure, House Bill 845, would restrict persons taking the bar exam to graduates from six Georgia law schools—" and I don't care what the folks think about that at Harvard or Yale."

"'NOT FAIR TO LAWYERS'

Judge Townsend also objected to provisions for disbarment proceedings which he said would do away with jury trials for accused lawyers, and "is not fair to lawyers and not fair to the people."

Houston White, an Atlanta lawyer opposing the bill, charged it was a measure designed to benefit casualty insurance companies who object to lawyers winning verdicts for their clients.

"You fellows representing these insurance companies," White declared, shaking a finger at members of the committee, "You don't know it, but they don't like you any better than they like plaintiff lawyers. Once this bill gets in there they'll amendment it to death and amendment you to death at the same time."

FAVORS 12 JURORS

Fulton Rep. Wilson Brooks, one of the co-authors of the bill, answered White's objections that the measure did not provide a fair trial for lawyers in disbarment proceedings by asking, Don't you believe you'd get a fair trial if three superior court judges were disbarring you?"

"I'd have a whole lot more confidence in 12 jurors than in six or nine superior court judges!" White thundered.

Other opponents to the bill included Sidney Schell, who said it would place an unfair obligation on night law schools to raise their standards, and that it in effect asks "not what do you know but where have you been?" of students.

$700 Raise Urged for Teachers

A member of the State Board of Education recommended Monday that Georgia teachers be given a $700 across-the-board pay raise as a means of improving educational standards in the state.

Francis Shurling of Wrightsville, said a proposed $200 raise for teachers should be increased by an additional $500. He also urged an enlarged teacher recruiting program.

Shurling, who was interviewed on WAGA-TV's reporter's notebook, agreed this might mean an increase in taxes.

RECOGNIZES PROBLEM

But, he said, he felt the people of Georgia realize that if they are going to have better education they will have to pay for it.

Shurling said he personally felt the state could save some money in transportation and by reducing the number of vocational agriculture courses.

He also suggested consolidating some smaller high schools, and pointed out a number of pupils were not being adequately prepared for college.

Asked if an administration intending to spend a lot of money on new schools sounded like one planning to close the schools, Shurling said it didn't.

DECLINES COMMENT

The educator declined direct comment on the letter written by James Peters, chairman of the Board of Education, to Roy Harris of Augusta, suggesting the state must reconcile itself to "some form of integration."

Shurling praised Peters for his work as an educator but did not express an opinion about the letter.

Cast Own Ballots Only, Speaker Warns in House

Complaints by several representatives that they had been "voted" while absent from the House brought a warning Monday from Speaker George L. Smith II.

Smith ordered voting rules read to the House during Monday's session, and several times he called for a vote by hand instead of by the voting machine. He reminded the representatives that they were to vote for themselves only—and not for any of their colleagues.

Rep. Artie Rogers of Heard County told The Atlanta Constitution that he was in the hospital with a back ailment last Thursday when the House voted on an administration bill to transfer the functions of the Georgia Commission on Alcoholism to the Health department.

"I picked up the paper the next morning," he said, "and I saw where I had voted against the bill." Rogers said he registered a complaint with Rep. Frank Twitty, floor leader.

"Twitty said about 10 other representatives told him they were absent when the vote was taken, but saw in the paper where they voted against it," Rogers said.

The measure lacked 20 votes (83-66) of passing, but was brought back for reconsideration Monday and passed on a hand-count vote, 117-0.

Twitty said, "I did have several members come to me and say they were recorded as voting against it when they weren't even here.

"That's why Speaker Smith was so emphatic today that no one should vote unless they were in their seats—and that they should not vote for anyone else."

Twitty said he did not believe there was "anything malicious" about the irregular voting.

"Some of the members just didn't realize the seriousness of it and walked up and down the aisles flipping switches. It's a bad habit and now that they have been warned, I don't think there will be any more of it."

Twitty said that the members who complained were quite upset. Some, including Rogers, called the governor.

"It is up to the House leadership to see that this does not happen," Twitty said, "and the speaker is going to be very observant about it."

The opportunity to vote for an absent representative came four years ago when the voting machines were installed in the House. Each member has a switch on his desk and the vote is recorded on two large, lighted boards on either side of the chamber.

It has been a fairly common practice for some legislators to go out of the chambers for short periods, leaving instructions with a colleague on how to be recorded on a measure under consideration.

Opening lead: King of ♣

It is difficult to stress too sharply the importance of that refreshing pause at trick one. It is at this time that declarer should muster his forces for the ensuing battle. A hasty play from dummy could readily place the contract beyond his reach.

However, the pause should not be too extended. Where legitimate means are not available by declarer, and artifice is required, the defender must not be given too much time in which to work out his own problems. South in today's hand rated a pat on the back for his neat psychological effort at the start of play.

North's opening bid, though a rock bottom minimum of 12 points, was reasonable enough, but the same can not be said for his immediate raise of South's response. A better choice on this balanced holding would have been a rebid of one no trump which might have served to slow his partner down subsequently. South's direct leap to six hearts after North's raise is beyond reproach.

West opened the king of clubs and declarer, without a flicker of hesitation, followed suit with the nine. West was certain that he had located the flaw in his opponent's armor and without further consideration, he continued with the queen of clubs. South played the ace, and cashed the dummy's top diamonds, discarding his last club. Now the ruff of a low club felled West's jack and established the suit for the discard of declarer's spade losers. A spade shift at trick two would have defeated the contract, for declarer would now have been unable to avoid the loss of at least one spade as well as a club.

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon"

New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity.

As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon wall also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge.

Relief, doctors say, lies in a new laxative principle. Old-style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days for relief. Old-style salts and drugs cramp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONAID gives you its special 3-way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation).

(1) COLONAID moisturizes dry, hardened waste for easy passage without pain or strain. (2) COLONAID'S unequalled rebulking action helps retone flabby colon muscles. (3) And COLONAID acts gently, on the nerve reflexes that stimulate the vital "mass movement" of your lower colon.

COLONAID relieves even chronic constipation overnight; is so gentle it was hospital proved safe even for expectant mothers. And COLONAID won't interfere with absorption of vitamins or other food nutrients. Get COLONAID today! Introductory size 43¢.

Suit to Ask Railroad Pay For Piedmont Underpass

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Atlanta aldermen Monday ordered legal action to expedite the widening of Piedmont road, NE.

City Attorney Jack Savage was authorized (1) to condemn the needed right-of-way for construction of a new underpass below the Southern Railway Co. tracks and (2) to force Southern to pay the cost of the whole improvement.

Ald. Jesse Draper, chairman of the public works committee, presented the resolution, directing that Savage begin the work at once. It cited that the new facility is "necessary for the general welfare, peace and happiness . . . and the protection of human life."

In directing that the railroad be forced to bear the complete expense, the resolution authorized Savage "to compel the Southern Railway Co. to construct, at its own expense, the necessary bridges, approaches, underpasses and abutments for the necessary widening."

Turner McDonald, public works chief for Fulton County, estimated Monday that construction, including engineering, will total some $277,000.

McDonald added the new facility will be a four-lane roadway replacing the present inadequate two-lane road. He said it will eliminate a reverse curve which now exists, and will increase the line of vision, providing more safety and at the same time handling considerably more than twice as many vehicles with less congestion.

The project is being completed by Fulton County from highway improvement board funds, but the county has asked Atlanta to use its condemnation authority to facilitate action on the underpass.

The aldermen also held until the March 7 meeting action on a proposed conflict of interest ordinances.

Mrs. Rae to Talk Tonight on Yoga

"Yoga: A Way of Life" will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. Dorothy Rae president of the Florida Federation of the Theosophical Society in America, Wednesday at Atlanta Theosophical headquarters.

The meeting will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the headquarters at 36 Thirteenth St., NE. The meeting will be open to the public. A discussion group on theosophical subjects will be led by Mrs. Rae at 8 p.m. Friday at the headquarters.

Crime Dips In 5 of 7 Categories

Major crime showed a decrease in Atlanta during January for five of the seven categories, records showed Monday.

Compared with January 1959, there were two fewer homicides; two fewer rapes; 16 fewer robberies; 13 fewer cases of aggravated assault and six fewer burglaries.

Comparisons of larcenies and auto larcenies were not available.

Here are the figures:

	1960	1959
Murder	6	8
Rape	6	8
Robbery	42	58
Assault	28	41
Residence Burglary	160	122
Store Burglary	243	287
Total Burglary	403	409

Tax Liens Freeze Daddy Grace Estate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Uncle Sam froze the huge estate of Bishop Charles M. (Sweet Daddy) Grace Monday with a batch of court liens aimed at collection of nearly $6 million in income tax claims against the Negro preacher.

The estate of the late head of the House of Prayer for All People has been estimated at up to $25 million. The bulk has been willed to the church which the eccentric evangelist founded at Charlotte, N.C., in 1926 when he baptized his first followers in a mudhole.

At the time of his death in Los Angeles Jan. 12, Grace claimed a membership of three million, nearly all Negroes, in more than 60 cities.

The bill for $5,966,000 in taxes for the years 1945 through 1956 is one of the largest ever entered by the Internal Revenue Service against an individual. The sums claimed range from $108,914 for 1946 to $1,531,063 for 1953.

The IRS filed the liens against real property and other assets of the estate in Washington, D.C., and 15 other federal jurisdictions in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Connecticut, New York, Massachusetts, Ohio, New Jersey, Florida, and Michigan. These had the effect of blocking any distribution of the estate pending settlement of the tax claims.

In Atlanta, Aubrey C. Ross, IRS director in Georgia, said a lien has been received for filing at Savannah against any property Grace may have owned in Chatham County. He explained a lien as a public notice that a clear title to property in question could not be conveyed until tax claims are satisfied.

Clayton Elections Set for April 23

The Clayton County Democratic executive committee has set Saturday, April 23, as the date for county elections.

Marlin DeFoor, secretary-treasurer of the committee, said April 15 is the earliest time fixed by law for elections to be held in the county.

DeFoor also said that a special election will be held Feb. 13 to fill the office of ordinary, which has been vacant since Frank Adamson resigned about two weeks ago.

Henderson Heads Georgia Ag Alumni

Walter Henderson has been named president of the DeKalb chapter of the University of Georgia College of Agriculture alumni association.

Other officers are G. Allen Burson, vice president, and Mrs. Marion Whitehead, secretary-treasurer.

Bandit, Victim Shot In Scuffle

A knife-wielding bandit was shot and wounded by a storekeeper late Monday night and in a scuffle which followed the bandit shot and wounded the storekeeper.

Both suffered wounds of the leg. They were John Herbert Jeffries, 62, of 698 Lindsay St., NW, operator of Henry's Country Store at 910 Bankhead Ave., NW, and Jimmy Fountain, 25, Negro, of a Norfolk street address. They were treated at Grady Hospital.

Jeffries said Fountain entered, brandished a knife, and said, "This is a holdup." Undaunted, Jeffries drew a small automatic and shot Fountain in the right leg. A tussle ensued, in which Fountain got Jeffries weapon and shot him in the leg.

Patrolman J. L. Collins, a foot officer, heard the commotion in the store and grabbed Fountain as he was running from the place. Fountain was charged with suspicion of robbery.

GEORGIA NEWS ROUNDUP

Columbus Boy Shoots Mother

COLUMBUS—Police held a 16-year-old Columbus boy Monday on charges of shooting and seriously wounding his mother.

The youth was apparently angered because his mother failed to give him a birthday present, County Police Chief W. F. Tuggle said.

The woman, who suffered a .22-caliber bullet wound in the head, was in "satisfactory" condition at St. Francis Hospital.

Tuggle said the boy, who told police he wanted a car for his birthday, got up Monday morning, ate breakfast and then got into an argument with his mother when he did not find a present awaiting him.

Tift Plant to Make Ornamental Iron

TIFTON—Tift County industrial officials Monday announced that an Ohio firm will build a plant here to produce ornamental iron.

The firm, called Versa Products Co., the first will be to locate in the new 1,000 acre Tifton Industrial Park sponsored by the Tifton Industrial Corp.

The company will employ 30 to 40 men.

Rock Eagle Backs Prison in Putnam

EATONTON—The Rock Eagle advisory committee has written Gov. Vandiver expressing "unanimous approval" of the plan to locate a state prison on experiment station land in Putnam County.

S. I. Walker, chairman of the committee, said the experiment station land is located from six to nine miles from the Rock Eagle 4-H center and said the prison would "in no way pose a threat to the center."

The measure passed the senate and is now awaiting action in the House.

Spears Files Dyer Case Guilt Plea

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Texas naturopath Robert V. Spears, 64, questioned by the FBI about an airliner crash that took 42 lives, Monday pleaded guilty to a violation of the Dyer Act.

"I'm guilty," said the bespectacled white-haired prisoner when asked by Federal Judge David Ling how he would plead. The Dyer Act covers interstate transportation of a vehicle without the owner's permission.

Violation of the act carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail or a $5,000 fine, or both. Judge Ling said he would study the doctor's case and a probation report. He set Feb. 15 for sentencing.

Manacled in chains with 21 other prisoners, Spears marched three blocks from county jail to federal court under the watchful eyes of six U.S. marshal's aides.

Spears walked quietly to the bench after waiting 45 minutes for his turn. He waived his right to be indicted by a federal grand jury. He entered his plea briskly, then returned to his seat at the rear of the courtroom to await return to jail.

The self-styled doctor, who faces abortion charges in Los Angeles, bought a ticket for an airline flight from Miami to New Orleans. He was listed as one of the 42 victims shortly after the National Airlines plane plunged into the Gulf of Mexico on Nov. 16.

Two months later, at a modern motel here, Spears was found alive. FBI agents arrested him on a technical charge of auto theft, the charge to which he pleaded guilty Monday.

FBI agents suspect that Spears might have duped a former prison inmate, William Allen Taylor, 58, of Tampa, into taking his seat aboard the ill-fated airliner.

Spears, an ex-convict with arrests dating back to 1917 for fraud, robbery and other charges, had taken out a $100,000 common carriers insurance policy in August, naming his wife beneficiary.

Doorbell Ignites Gas, Injures 13

VIENNA (UPI)—Thirteen persons were injured, some critically, Monday when a suicide's gas-filled room suddenly exploded.

Hundreds of windows in the area were shattered by the blast, believed caused when a spark from a doorbell ignited the gas.

Police said Gabrielt Seiner, 5, killed himself by gas because of an unhappy love affair. They said a neighbor unwittingly set off the blast when he rang the doorbell to investigate the smell of gas.

Yul Considers Devoting Life To Refugees

BEIRUT (UPI) — Actor Yul Brynner said Monday he might abandon his Hollywood career for a full-time job in the United Nations refugee program.

"I've been contemplating giving up show business ever since I got into it," Brynner said. "That was 26 years ago. But I do think the time is getting ripe."

Brynner, who signed a dollar-a-year two-year contract last year as a U.N. consultant on the refugee problem, was scheduled to leave for New York Tuesday.

Anne Marie Is Expecting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steven Rockefeller, son of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, confirmed Monday night that his Norwegian bride, the former Anne Marie Rasmussen, is expecting a baby.

ALL SHE DOES IS DREAM OF HER SWEETHEART

Is It REALLY Love— Or Only Infatuation?

By YOLANDE GWIN

Do I really love that wonderful, divine, adorable man?

That, friends, is the greatest question confronting today's unmarried women.

Every woman asks herself: Is he THE one? Is it true love? Is it a mere romance or is it infatuation?

And every woman has, or thinks she has, a personal testing program to find out if she really loves THAT man. Methods vary from wanting to be with him all the time to thinking about him and getting excited about him before she brushes her teeth every morning.

But here comes an expert, a Dr. Eleanor Hamilton of New York (she failed to state if she was married or had found her true love), who has compiled a dandy list of questions which she thinks are love vitamins for the girls to take to discover true love.

The questions, or vitamins, it seems, are sturdy enough for the girl to endure the hardships of a normal marriage.

Answer "yes" to the following questions, girls, and you've found your Prince Charming, your true love, your dreamboat, your ideal or Mr. Right.

Do you feel good with him, comfortable all over? Do you think you can live in close proximity with him the rest of your life?

Now here's one, some of the women folks probably never had considered: Do you like the smell of him? The sound of his voice?

DETERMINING FACTOR

The maternal instinct will be a determining factor on this question: Do you feel joyous at the thought of rendering him primitive personal services, in illness or in health, such as bathing him, rubbing his back, easing discomforts?

Your own mother love is overlooked by this question: Does the thought of carrying his child in your body fill you with deep ecstasy?

One long-standing rule—"to be mysterious"—crumbles to nothing at this question: Do you feel comfortable about sharing all your thoughts and feelings with him?

Everybody knows men hate to change their habits, but nevertheless Dr. Hamilton asks: Do you like his character and habits enough to enter marriage with him without attempting to change him?

The New Yorker, however, states that "love resides in the heart of the lover and is known by its overweening desire to give, not to get."

ATLANTA COUNSELOR

One of Atlanta's leading marriage counselors, Dr. Eddie Anderson, considering the check list of love, said:

"I think that the list does fill a place to clarify one's feelings However, you don't acquire happiness by answering yes to all of them. We learn how to make a happy marriage by learning together for 'our' marriage not 'my' marriage.

"Answers to these questions are not predictive of how true love is or how successful the marriage will be, but two people can become aware of better relationships.

"A man should be asked these questions as well as a woman, for these avenues of love and marriage are for both. Each offers his or her own capibilities, for guiding one into the needs of each other. Our emotional health is not due to the absence of problems, but is due to the methods we use to solve each problem as it arises. Remember too that the joys of tomorrow are never achieved unless we have the joys of today, step by step."

Another Atlanta marriage counselor, who preferred to be unidentified said:

"I think these true love checklist questions are very important, because they open possibilities of thought you, or that is a person in love, had not thought of before.

"Then too, do these questions inspire a woman to be more feminine in order to hold her man? And does his personality make her glad she is a woman? Does the strength of the two personalities combine for growth or do they stop on a certain plateau which sometimes is the case when they have fulfilled their sexual desires?

"If this is so," continued the counselor, "the frustrated one has to turn outward for happiness. This can be on a career level, for the woman, and for both it could be the old triangle.

"I think a question which should be asked is this: 'Do you like being together aside from the area of affection?' Also are backgrounds similar?"

Regardless of questions, advice from experts, the printed word and other media for keeping Dan Cupid in step with your life, true love depends on two things: the two people who vow to love and to cherish till death do them part.

Strickland-Fisch Vows To Attract Visitors Here

Robie Strickland's marriage to William W. Fisch on Saturday evening at Peachtree Road Methodist Church will lure numerous guests from a distance, including the bride-elect's uncles and aunts, the Willis Stricklands and the Leon Stricklands of Richland; her cousins, Kitty and Sam Strickland of Richland and Dr. and Mrs. Emerson Hamm of Savannah.

The future bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Edgar McHutchison of Demarest, N.J., is expected on Friday to be the guest of her mother, Mrs. Walton Clarke. Macon guests will include Mr. and Mrs. Charles Block, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hall, Judge and Mrs. William A. Bootle and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hollis Jr.

South Carolinians expected for the wedding are the John Adamsons of Ware Shoals, and the James F. Gallivans of Greenville. Coming from Sewanee, Tenn., are the Thomas Fitzgeralds; from Princeton, N.J., William Black; and from Abbeville, La., Mrs. Emmett Putnam. Those former Atlantans, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Powell, will come from Birmingham to visit the latter's parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. G. McDaniel.

Other visitors will include the Hamilton Arnalls of Newnan, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Ornold of Covington, Miss Bernice Freeman of LaGrange, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hardin of Forsyth, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Huckabee of Ft. Valley, James E. Hickey of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Moate of Sparta, Mrs. Bernard Neal of Rome, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Persons of Talbotton, the Jack Rays of Norwood, the G. L. Rices of Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Simons of Gainesville, the G. H. Smiths of Lindale and the W. Clair Harrises of Winder. Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the Capital City Country Club, with Robie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Strickland, as hosts.

WILLIAM THOMAS HEALEY IV chose Sunday, Jan. 31, as his birthday, making his first appearance at Highland Park Hospital, Highland Park, Ill. He is the son of Lt. William T. Healey III, USN, and Mrs. Healey, the former Carol Cowan, now of Waukegan, Ill. His father is on duty at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center. The baby is the grandson of the Donald H. Cowans and the William T. Healeys Jr. of Atlanta.

MRS. JAMES KENAN is visiting her mother, Mrs. Johnson Camden, at her home, Runnymede, Lexington, Ky. The pair plans to go to New York for a few days' stay before Mrs. Kenan returns to Atlanta around Feb. 15.

MRS. JULIAN ROBINSON had as her guests for the weekend her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Avery of Oakland, Calif. The pair stopped here en route to New York from where they will sail tomorrow for a Mediterranean cruise of several weeks.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK KENAN returned to Durham, N.C., on Sunday after a few days' visit with the former's mother, Mrs. Thomas S. Kenan, who has been ill of pneumonia, and Mr. Kenan on Fifteenth street. The visitors were en route from Oklahoma.

WILLIAM CANDLER is reported holding his own, following an operation he underwent Sunday afternoon at Orange Memorial Hospital, Orlando, Fla., which was necessitated by injuries received in a recent accident.

MR. AND MRS. RALPH RAGAN returned Sunday after a week's visit to their daughter, Mrs. Allen Smith, and Col. Smith in Tampa.

ARTHUR G. FORT, son of the Dudley C. Forts, has been separated from the service after 18 months of duty as an Army sergeant in Germany. He will enroll today at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., where his father, his grandfather, Dr. Rufus Fort of Nashville, Tenn., and his brother, Dudley Fort Jr., was each graduated.

Celestine Sibley

A Lousy C-Minus?

Her application for admission to a journalsim school came and she sent it to me to fill in some of the blanks.

"Would you want your daughter to work for a newspaper?" a friend jibed, parodying, of course, the dilapidated old cliche of our time, "Would you want your daughter to marry . . ." etc.

I started to say "No"—the automatic response of any parent who wants his children to avoid all the pitfalls he lurched into, miss all the pain and, instead, to make a million dollars.

But the fact that it was an application to a college reminded me of something—my own application to a college during the depression days of the 30s. I was able to make application because I had a newspaper job, a full-time job at the munificent pay of $12 a week, and because the men who ran that newspaper had a reverence for education.

Some of them were young men who had attended fine Eastern colleges. One was an old university football star. One, an editorial writer who didn't last long, wore a Phi Beta Kappa key on his watch chain. But many of them were men who had very little formal schooling and for that reason they nurtured an almost supernatural awe of college education. When they learned I was going to try to work and go to school they had an informal staff meeting to decide how they could help me by rearranging hours and assignments and swapping days off. In exchange for this I had to take the courses they considered important, subjects they wished they had had the opportunity to study themselves.

The city editor to my youthful eyes appeared to be an elderly fellow. (I know now he was probably 35.) He had come up through a hard school, supporting an invalid mother by selling newspapers on the streets of New Orleans and later driving a taxicab. They said he had only gone through the sixth grade in school but so great was his passion for the written word that he had educated himself.

I can hear him now wrangling with a yellow-skinned, cadaverous old desk man over my schedule. They studied the little folder given me by the registrar, taking full cognizanze of the tuition fees and the high cost of textbooks. The desk man had been to college himself but he was at a disadvantage in any argument because he nearly always had the shakes from drinking the night before and at the time I was embarking on my higher education he was having all his teeth pulled. It made it difficult for him to cope with a sibilant word like "sociology." And sociology was a subject he fondly championed for me.

"Sho-shollogy . . . hell!" the city editor cried, finally settling that argument. "She takes Shakespeare! I say she needs Shakespeare bygod! How can she know anything about the language without Shakespeare?"

Up to that point my use of the language had run heavily to death notices and weather stories and I didn't figure Shakespeare would be of much importance to me in coping with the foibles of the old Weather Bureau chieftain—a man who forecast fair weather and then went out wearing rubbers and toting an umbrella. But it was not mine to reason why. I was going to college but the education really belonged to those men in the office who haggled over my courses, nagged me about my grades, dipped curiously into my textbooks and fed me soup and hotdogs on those days when I'd spent my last nickel on carfare.

They were hard on me. I can still hear the police reporter who gave me his Monday off saying bitterly, "So you made a C-minus, huh? On MY day off the best you can do is a lousy C-minus?" But they were equally hard on my teachers. The English professor who gave me a C-plus on the theme they had helped me write about the bonus marchers really heard from them.

Want my daughter to work for a newspaper? If she should be so lucky I'll know a good fairy attended her birth.

ATLANTA CAREER GIRL

The Way to Really Know A Man Is Work With Him

By JUNE WILSON

Whether the Career Girl works from necessity or from choice, there are a number of desirable things about having a job aside from lunch hour and the pay check. But being a woman, she is not inclined to consider the good things all at once. She takes them one at a time, and then mostly when they are brought strikingly to her attention. The very business of set office hours sometimes grates on her, but then they can be a blessing.

You will notice that it is the working mothers of young children who click jauntiest into their offices on Monday. Monday is not Blue to these. Small children are a great motivation for the working mother. About 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon when it has rained all weekend, children are the finest inducement known to send her cheerfully back to the office. Whether her job is gainful, creative or challenging becomes small consideration when compared with the Elysian prospect of being again among adults where not one of them calls her "Mamma"!

GOOD THINGS

There are good things to be learned. There is certain fulfillment in finding herself calm and steady during the storm that can arise at any moment in a business office. It is not only heard music which may spellbind the savage; there is a whole vocabulatory of silence to be mastered. Too few women even know its alphabet, for in a crisis the female traditionally sheds her anxiety by talking it to death.

People do not suffer so much from the inarticulate prudent as from the wordy twaddle of the eager beaver. In sume circles just listening is worth $50 an hour. This makes learning the wordless language worth any working girl's while.

Then she learns that while the world is indeed full of a number of things, a neat 95% of them are phoney. The other 5% she holds onto by sheer, blubbering faith, but the Career Girl abroad in the business world eventually develops a faculty for scenting out a phoney or a put-up job to rival the hound. Unfortunately for her, this faculty often deserts her after office hours, but was anything except the humidity ever a hundred per cent?

A GREAT DEAL

The working girl learns a great deal about men; varying amounts about women. She arrives, often late, at the knowledge that to love one's neighbor does not mean she must clutch every viper to her and that she can wish one well and at the same time wish him well away from her. Then, unexpectedly, the nebulous 5% pays off and she finds herself both friend and befriended.

And to be intensely practical, any woman who pays attention on the job knows that the bit about "you never really know a man until you live with him" is blarney. The way to really know a man is to WORK WITH HIM. This one exercise is unexcelled for removing the scales from the eyes, and for banishing from the vision the misty illusions by which many a girl is led smack into a ditch.

Chaplin, Posey Vows Said

At an evening ceremony solemnized at Morningside Presbyterian Church, Elizabeth Gaines Chaplin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Chaplin, was married to Frank H. Posey Jr., with the pastor, Dr. Arthur Vann Gibson, officiating.

Mr. Chaplin gave his daughter in marriage, and she was attended by the bridegroom's sister, Achsah Posey, as maid of honor.

The bridesmaids included Melba Wages of Buford, Polly Davis of Decatur and Mrs. William D. Oliver.

The bride wore the Chantilly lace gown worn by Mrs. Oliver, the former Vicky Mullinkis, at her marriage. It was embroidered in seed pearls and designed with a chapel train. The bride's veil fell from a cap of matching lace, and she carried a white Bible given her by Mrs. Kenneth Korstian when she played at the latter's wedding. The Bible was caught with a cluster of white orchids and roses.

Water M. Stinnett was best man for Mr. Posey, and serving as his groomsmen were R. W. Mothershed Jr., of Atlanta; William M. McIntosh III of Harrisburg, Pa., and Larry Chaplin, the bride's brother.

James T. Sewell Jr. and Robert Speights seated the wedding guests.

After a honeymoon in the mountains, the couple will live at 2029 Bolton Dr., NW. The bridegroom is attending Georgia Tech where he is a member of Delta Sigma Phi, and is employed by the U.S. Geological Survey. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Posey of Atlanta.

The bride, a graduate of Piedmont Hospital School of Nursing, attended the University of Georgia where she was a member of Alpha Gamma Delta.

Most Men Like Feminine Women Who Are Genuinely Respectable!

By RICHARD H. KLEMER, Ph.D.

(Tenth of a series.)

Many women are single today be ause they have had too much of being friends or pals with the men they have known. They have been good companions without ever being able to excite enough motivation to cause that man — or sometimes themselve —to want to make it a permanent marriage relationship. Many men will tell you quite frankly, "Why I never thought of marrying her; we aren't that kind of friends."

But it isn't sexual interest alone that makes the difference. Many men wouldn't think of marrying their mistresses either.

Somewhere early in the relationship between every man and every woman an emotional sorting out takes place. Both the man and the woman share in the definition process whether they are aware of it or not.

Since the man does the asking, very often it is he who decides whether the particular young woman with whom he has become acquainted is to become a "good friend" (like a sister to him), an unmarried sex partner whom he would not marry (or, at least, doesn't want to), or a real prospect for marriage.

There can be no universal rules, but if you really care, I think that the best way to avoid falling into either of the two dead-end classifications is (1) to be sincere, (2) to make yourself as close as you can to the ideal he has for the girl he wants to marry, (3) to be feminine, (4) to be respectable, (5) to be capable and dependable and yet a little bit dependent, (6) to be enthusiastic and appreciative, (7) to be positive (when asked), (8) to let him know you like him, (9) to be interested in sex, (10) to let him know that you have a normal desire to be married and have a home, and, finally, (11) to avoid trying to control him with rewards and punishments.

It seems pretty clear that most American men want women for their sex-appropriate friends who are feminine and women who are genuinely respectable. This last means not only women who behave properly but who are also outstanding enough in some way to be admired by his men friends and envied by his ex-girl friends.

The American man's sex-appropriate friend also has to be capable and dependable enough to make him feel secure about entrusting her to keep his dream cottage running smoothly some day, and yet she has to be a little bit dependent so as to make him feel superior.

All the while, of course, she should be enthusiastic and appreciative and positive about what she wants to do when she is asked.

And, speaking of making your "likes" clear, it is usually a good idea to let him know that you like him if you do. Unless you happen to be tremendously popular to begin with, playing hard to get doesn't get you very far.

Most American men like to be liked—loved would be a better word. They like to be needed, just as you do. It makes them feel important. Why then all this nonsense that concealing your true feelings will help you win him? This belongs with a number of other classic fallacies that have promoted more singleness than all the masculine protests put together.

Since most American men are interested in sex, they quite naturally expect that their women friends will be too. In most areas and in most age ranges and in most social groups, this doesn't necessarily imply that intercourse is expected. More often it assumes a wholesome interest in sex. This means that the man you are with understands that you are a warm, normal alive woman who could, under the right circumstances, quiver under his touch. You don't have to prove this; in fact, it is probably better if you don't. But you have to leave no doubt in his mind that there are ecstasies in your response which can be his when he has earned the right to them. To do this well—to make this implication with just the right degree of subtlety—you have to know your man.

It is painful to be in almost direct contradiction to so many of the advice - to - the - lovelorn writers, but I insist most American men are not scared off by the idea that a normal American woman would like to be married. It is, in fact, more than anything else a part of their expectation for a real sex-appropriate friend.

Any man who is actually frightened by the idea that the woman he is with would like to marry him almost immediately places himself in the minority group of those who are at least emotionally immature and possibly in need of psychiatric help. Or else he is in the playboy bachelor class—another minority group—that wants unrestricted sex and nothing more. Neither of these kinds makes a good husband anyway, so why worry about them?

When it comes into the conversation easily and without forcing the issue, let your real friend know you would like to be married and that you want a man who loves his wife and children. In the end that's the way you will get the friend you want.

Finally, if you are going to continue to be his friend, sex-appropriate or otherwise, don't try to control him too closely, through the same set of punishments and rewards that your parents or parent substitutes used on you.

What this really boils down to is that becoming sex - appropriate friends means coming to understand his expectations for a wife-mate.

But by the time you have come to understand him so as to be able to decide whether your personality is congenial to his ideals, you probably will have long since begun the process of meeting his emotional needs as well as his expectations. The second step will be completed, and you will be ready for the important and final step—becoming emotionally indispensable to him.

Tomorrow: Meeting his emotional needs.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Mr. I. G. Griggs Sr. who passed away three years ago, today, Feb. 2, 1957.
Three years have passed since that sad day,
When the one we loved was called away,
God took him home,
It was His will,
But in our hearts, he'll always live.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Weather forecasting, one of the earliest sciences of man, has become almost an exact science."—Column quote.

The weather shouldn't bother us . . . If we are well and free of pain . . . But it is something we discuss . . . When there's a sudden shower of rain . . . And if a drop in temperature . . . Is forecast on the radio . . . Or television, we are sure . . . It will reach twenty-six below.

There's nothing much that we can do . . . About it, but the weatherman . . . (To judge from all his ballyhoo) . . . Has the opinion that he can . . . He puts some chalk marks on his map . . . And with his finger indicates . . . Where cold winds from the Arctic cap . . . Will sweep across the Western states . . . To meet a bank of warmer air . . . That's rising from the central plains . . . And all the people living there . . . Will suffer from torrential rains.

If his predictions all came true . . . We would be "froze-to-death" or drowned . . . But even then, there'd be a few . . . Old weather prophets still around . . . Predicting rain or sleet and snow . . . Or cyclones, when the skies grew dark . . . Like Noah did, long years ago . . . While he was working on the ark.

2 Atlantans Advance in Science Race

Two Atlantans were among 448 high school seniors named for honor awards as the nation's "most promising young scientists" in the Westinghouse Educational Foundation's 19th annual Science Talent Search.

They are Douglas Rumble III, 17, of 587 E. Morningside Dr., NE, and Alan Jacob Friedman, 17, of 569 E. Wesley Rd., NE.

The 448 seniors represent the top 10 per cent of qualifying entrants in the competition. Forty winners will be chosen from them for an all-expense trip to Washington, where they will vie for scholarships and awards totaling $34,250 during a five-day science institute beginning March 3. The 40 winners will be announced Feb. 2.

Rumble's project was entitled "Geology of the Coastal Plain"; Friedman's, "Diurnal Variation of Potential Gradient." Rumble attends Henry Grady High School, and Friedman North Fulton.

Ex-Atlantans To Work in Okinawa

A former Atlantan, the Rev. Charles H. Hambrick, and his wife were among 85 persons to be commissioned as home and overseas missionaries of the Methodist Church at Buck Hills Falls, Pa., this week.

The Hambricks will work with university students in Okinawa, where the Rev. Mr. Hambrick served for three years as a special term missionary and organized a Student Christian Movement at the University of Ryukyus.

Be sure your pet isn't one of the 65 of every 100 dogs so poorly nourished they cannot pass a life insurance examination*

FEED HIM

completely nourishing Ideal DOG FOOD

Packed under continuous U.S. Government Inspection

INSPECTED AND CERTIFIED BY U.S. DEPT. OF AGR. AS A NORMAL MAINTENANCE DOG FOOD

It's an inescapable fact—a great many dog foods do not nourish completely

Extensive laboratory tests reveal as many as 65 out of 100 seemingly healthy dogs are undernourished. This leaves the wonderful pet wide open to the ravages of disease. However, an undernourished state shows up so slowly you may be unaware that your dog is not getting the nourishment it needs until it is too late.

Ideal inspected by the U. S. Government. Ideal, manufactured under continuous U.S. Government Inspection, is completely nourishing because of the proper blend of the high quality ingredients used in order to comply with Wilson & Co. as well as U.S. Government standards. The U. S. Government Inspection also assures Ideal is packed under clean and sanitary conditions. • Remember this. Ideal is made from U.S. Government Inspected meat animals processed for human consumption. Ideal contains all the protein, vitamins, and minerals your dog requires for radiant good health...normal growth...strong bones...sleek coat... pep, vigor, and resistance to disease.

Why feed a dog food of questionable nutritive value? Try a 30-day health test with Ideal. Feed your dog Ideal and drinking water for 30 days—nothing else needed for complete nourishment and balance. Notice the improvement in your dog's well-being. So be sure the U. S. Inspection shield is on the cans you buy—Ideal with the blue diamond label—the dog food with pets' appeal.

Ideal—No feeding problems. Dogs and cats like its clean, wholesome, meaty aroma. You will too. Ideal does not "smell-up" your refrigerator!

Ideal—Doesn't offer "give-aways" or "free" cans. Every penny you pay is for the preparation of a completely nourishing dog food.

An SFL Franchise

Football prospectors agree that the Southeast, Big Ten and Southwest are the most fertile college fields. Now that the American Football League has opened shop, the Southeast is the only area untapped by the pros.

You have one of the finest markets in the land and no product. In caliber of play and at the all-important box office, the Southeastern Conference ranks with the best and the richest. So why wouldn't a major league pro football league thrive in the South?

Outlar

Various groups have toyed with this idea, but no one has made the correct approach. Still, there's no reason why it shouldn't work. If Dixie does have the greatest players and fans, as advertised, the pro game would have a running start.

You promptly hear the argument that a Southern League would merely be another minor circuit comparable to the sickly Southern Association.

Properly handled, it wouldn't be. First, you're saddled with minor league baseball players, but you'd have major league football players. Anyone who has toured the South will vouch that there's more enthusiasm for football than baseball.

Naturally, it would take several years to overhaul the National Football League. But you could kick off with the infant American Football League. Any freshman fan recognizes that Atlanta, Miami and Birmingham would draw more customers than Denver, Boston and Oakland.

—Stars Could Work and Play at Home

Financial support, playing sites, players and fans are the ingredients required for a successful sports operation. What about TV? You promptly consider the fact that the National Football League would put you out of business by telecasting while you're playing home games.

Under the present set-up TV would be a damaging factor. However, a pending sports bill sponsored by Sen. Estes Kefauver would erase such a threat. If the bill, still in committee, eventually becomes a law, no pro football, basketball or hockey team can televise in an area of 75 miles of a live game.

Larry Morris, the All-America center from Tech, who plays for the Chicago Bears, recently summed up the sentiments of most pro players when he said, "Pro football is merely a means to an end."

There are many talented performers who sidestep pro football to get started in business. They don't want to leave the city where they intend to enter business.

However, a large number of players would jump at the chance to play football in their hometown. If you're an insurance agent, for example, free advertising before several thousands fans and stories in the papers and TV and radio sportscasts are a tremendous asset.

There are at least 75 "big time" college football teams. There are only 21 pro teams, so stocking rosters wouldn't pose any great problem. As mentioned, many far-sighted youngsters would pass up quick bucks in the NFL to remain at home and launch a business while continuing a pro career.

—Dixie College Football Is Major League

What cities should be included in a Southern lineup and where would the teams play?

Okay, let's list Atlanta first. The team would play in Ponce de Leon Park until the new stadium is completed. If Georgia Tech can pull 44,000 each Saturday, any pro team should draw at least 25,000 which would be capacity at Poncey.

Miami would be a natural member. The University of Miami hasn't been very exciting of late, but the Hurricane crowds seldom dip below 30,000. The team would play in the Orange Bowl.

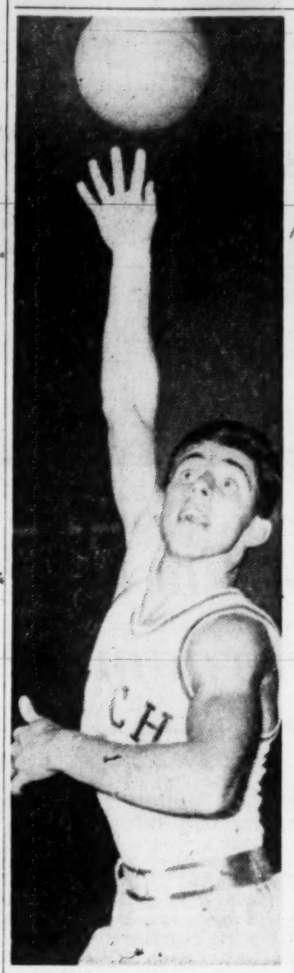

Jacksonville is rapidly becoming one of the most sports-minded cities in the South. The progressive-minded citizens have built the Gator Bowl, a new baseball park and a basketball coliseum in recent years. The Gator Bowl supplies a swank home for any football team.

Birmingham is a football hotbed. High school games have attracted more than 20,000 customers, and Auburn and Alabama games frequently pack in 45,000. Legion Field, owned by the city, would be available.

New Orleans, Louisville, Little Rock, Mobile and Memphis have stadiums which should welcome additional revenue from pro football. In general, these cities are far more excited by football than baseball. For instance, Little Rock never supported the Travelers, but you can't buy a ticket to Arkansas games in handsome Memorial Stadium. Mobile sold over 40,000 tickets to the Senior Bowl and Ladd Stadium ranks with the best.

Richmond, Nashville, Chattanooga, Shreveport and other Southern cities might be interested in pro football.

There's no reason why pro football should be minor league simply because of a Southern label. Certainly there's nothing minor league about college football in the South.

Showdown on Plain: Auburn Waits Tech

Must Game For Tigers

By MICKEY LOGUE

As the giraffe said when he stuck his neck in the guillotine, "It won't be long now."

Joe Eaves

Whack Hyder

Georgia Tech and Auburn square off Tuesday night in the one that counts in Southeastern Conference basketball.

Auburn won the one that didn't count in the standings, 66-59, two weeks ago at Alexander Memorial Coliseum and rules a slight favorite to repeat at home.

It's a "must" game for Auburn and an "if" game for Tech.

Auburn already has two conference losses and must win to stay within passing distance of the pace-setting Yellow Jackets.

If Tech wins, it will reduce each challenger's mathematical chances of catching Coach Whack Hyder's league leaders, who have a 7-0 conference chart at the halfway point.

Other challengers include Kentucky, Tulane and Ole Miss, who all own two SEC setbacks. It has been 20 years since a team that had more than two conference losses finished first in the regular season race.

It also is a "must" game for Tech as far as area prestige is concerned.

Auburn has a five-game winning streak going against the Jackets. After whipping Kentucky twice this season, Tech doesn't relish the idea of losing a pair to the arch-rival Tigers.

Auburn carries a 27-game home winning streak into the 8:30 p.m. (EST) showdown. Coach Joel Eaves' Tigers have not lost at home since a Tech reversal in January 1957. Seventeen straight SEC opponents have fallen at The Plain, and the Tigers have won most of their road scraps during the span.

Al Ciraldo will broadcast the Tech-Auburn game over WGST starting at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday night.

An If Game For Jackets

Both teams have problems that are simple to recognize, but complex to solve.

Auburn, as Eaves puts it, must do a reasonable defensive job on high-scoring Roger Kaiser and Dave Denton to stay in the game.

Tech, as Hyder puts it, must keep Auburn from shuffling for easy baskets. And Tech has to get tougher on the boards.

Denton heads Tech's rebounding corps with 161. Jim Riley follows with 109 Jacket rebounds.

Despite a shortage of muscle and stamina, the 6-8 Riley delivered a notable backboard performance last week against Kentucky's rugged Wildcats.

Bobby Dews' speed and shooting ability make him a constant offensive and defensive threat. Wayne Richards has been a timely shooter lately. Richards is averaging 8.9 points and Dews 8.7.

Hyder, understandably, is not telling how Tech plans to keep Auburn outside. Zone and switching man-to-man defenses are probabilities.

After back-to-back bad halves against Georgia and Auburn, Auburn's outside shooters are due to find the range.

David Vaughn, who has been inches off target since hitting 19 at Tech, still leads Auburn's balanced scoring with 14.1 points. His 121 rebounds also are tops for the Tigers.

Henry Hart follows with 13.9 points, Jimmy Fibbe, 13.6; Porter Gilbert, 11.7, and Ray Groover, 9.6. Fibbe has 103 rebounds.

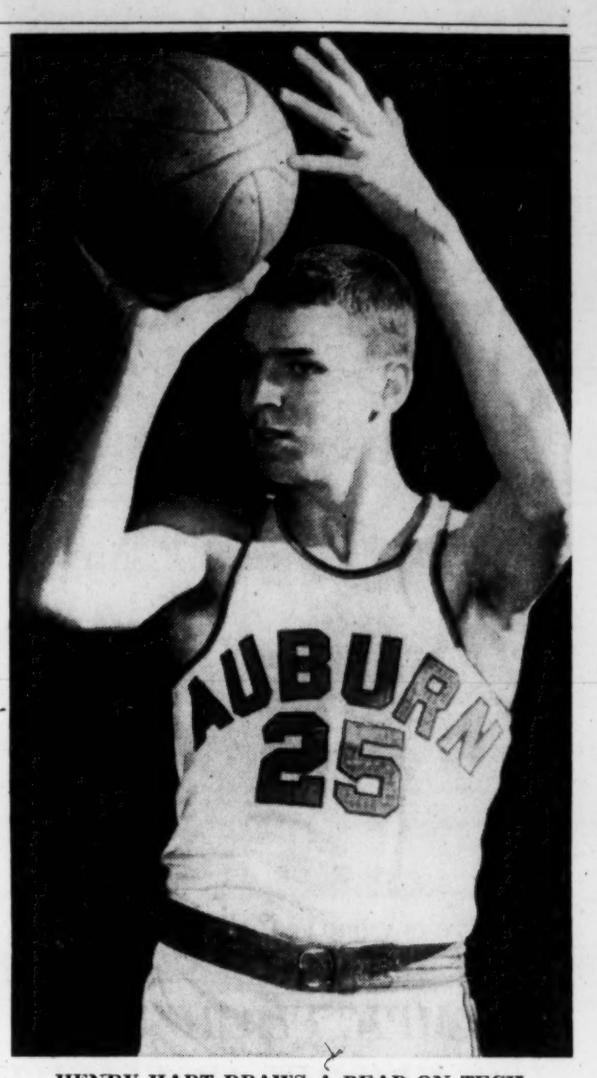

Groover's rapid improvement impressed Tech Scout Byron Gilbreath in Saturday night's one-point victory over Vanderbilt.

The injury-plagued Hart returned to form with 18 points against the Commodores.

Vaughn and Fibbe, Auburn's 6-3 "giants," helped take a slight rebounding edge over the larger Vandy five.

Auburn is 4-2 in the SEC and 11-3 over-all. Tech is 7-0 and 16-2.

Bulldogs Hunt Win No. 10 Among Towering Gamecocks

Work Cut Out For Simpson

By AL THOMY

Hoping to fight height with might, Coach Red Lawson of Georgia Monday told his "big team" to stand by for action at Columbia Tuesday night.

South Carolina is one of the tallest teams the Bulldogs will meet this season, and Lawson wanted his big men ready for the 8 p.m. tapoff.

"They are as tall as any team we played . . . or will play," said Lawson after a Monday practice session. "The only scouting we've done on them was by television. I saw their TV game with Duke, and let me tell you, they looked mighty tough."

The Gamecocks' stratospheric lineup reads a bit like this: 6-10 center Larry Dial, 6-6 forward Mike Callahan, 6-8 forward Bob Frantz, 6-0 guard Art Whisnant and 6-0 guard Ronnie Johnson.

If Lawson goes with his big team—and it is doubtful that he will except in substituting shuffles—the order would read: 6-7 forward John Johnson, 6-5 forward Phillip Simpson, 6-9 center Peter Marsh, 6-3 guard Don Keiser and 6-4 guard John Barnard.

It is likely Lawson will start his usual team of Keiser and Simpson at forwards, Johnson at center, and Gordon Darrah and Allan Johnson at guards. If they get beat on the boards, the big team may be rushed to the front.

South Carolina could conceivably stop Simpson or Johnson but certainly not both. Each has averaged over 10 rebounds a game and better than 12 points from the field.

GEORGIA	FG	FT	TP	Avg.
Darrah	79	55	203	14.2
Simpson	84	47	215	13.4
Johnson	78	40	164	12.2
Keiser	75	34	184	11.5
Casey	42	43	127	7.9
A. Johnson	29	15	63	3.9

Lawson perches on the verge of his most successful season at Athens. Now 9-7 for the season, he is two short of the 1958-59 record (11-15), which was his finest. A victory over SC would move the Bulldogs nearer that goal.

The Gamecocks of Bob Stevens have already surpassed last season's 4-20 record. They are 6-11 for the year and, actually, lead the Atlantic Coast Conference in total points (1,238) and points permitted (1,357).

The game figures to be close. Powerful Georgia Tech was able to beat the South Carolinians only six points (70-64) on the Gamecock home court.

After SC, Georgia moves back into the Southeastern Conference in a Saturday night game at Auburn.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Larry Pennington, a transfer from Hinds Junior College in Mississippi, poured in 33 points for Alabama Monday night and the Tide defeated Vanderbilt 61-54.

It was Alabama's first conference victory of the season, against five losses.

Pennington's score was a high mark for Alabama players this

Basilio's Co-Managers Barred For Life from New York Rings

NEW YORK (AP)—The state athletic commission Monday barred Carmen Basilio's co-managers — Johnny DeJohn and Joe Netro—for life from New York rings and fined Syracuse matchmaker-promoter Norman Rothschild $2,000 for making payments to an undercover (unlicensed) manager.

All three admitted at an inquiry that they had made payments to Gabe Genovese, who was convited last June of being the undercover manager of lightweight Ludwig Lightburn of British Honduras. Genovese, of Miami Beach, was sentenced to a two-year prison term.

It is illegal for an unlicensed person to participate in a boxing show in New York. It also is illegal for a licensee to deal with unlicensed persons in making matches.

CARMEN BASILIO
Without a Manager

The commission declared Basilio's contract with DeJohn and Netro null and void and ordered the 32-year-old former welterweight and middleweight champion not to make any further payments to them.

"I will be my own manager," said Basilio at his Canastota, N.Y. home, when advised of the commission's decision. "We were together eight years and I can only say I would never want anyone else to handle my affairs.

DeJohn of Syracuse, and Netro of Ithaca, N.Y., could not be reached immediately for comment.

Rothschild, in Syracuse, said he accepted the commission's ruling without argument.

The commission fined him $1,000 as matchmaker, and the Arena Boxing Club, which he heads, $1,000.

Rothschild admitted making a $10,000 payment to Genovese for the latter's assistance in the promotion of the Basilio-Johnny Saxton welterweight title fight at Syracuse, Sept. 12, 1956.

DeJohn admitted he gave Genovese $34,000 from 1955 to 1959 for his "services as an adviser and scout."

Netro admitted paying Genovese approximately $25,000 from 1956 to 1959 in repayment for past favors.

"The attempt to explain the payments to Gabe Genovese is a thin tissue of fabrication which this commission refuses to accept," the commission stated.

'Big O' Scores 36 Points To Shatter Selvy Record

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati nailed down an easy 96-61 basketball victory Monday night over Drake and All-America Oscar Robertson breezed past the three-year scoring mark for major college basketball players with a 36-point performance.

The game was only 5½ minutes old when Robertson drove in for two quick layup field goals that gave him a total of 2,539 points as a collegian, and a new mark.

The old record was 2,538 left by Frank Selvy after 78 varsity games with Furman, ending in 1954.

With 15 points in the first half and 21 after intermission, Robertson pushed his career total to 2,571 points in 75 games.

Only 16 points now separate Robertson from the other major college scoring mark — Dickie Hemric's 2,587 points for four season at Wake Forest ending in 1955. Chances are Oscar will reach that summit Saturday against Houston.

Turley in Fold for $30,000; Minoso Balks at Sox Offer

Chargers Grab Noll as Coach

From Press Dispatches

Pitcher Bob Turley signed his 1960 Yankee contract Monday for a reported $30,000 and outfielder Minnie Minoso rejected a Chicago White Sox offer.

Neither Turley nor the club divulged the exact figure, but Turley, bitter a week ago when he said he was asked to take a 24 per cent cut, stated:

"I am very happy with the terms."

Turley, a righthander, drew $32,000 last year after a 21-7 record in 1958. Last year he dropped to 8-11.

Minoso, the Cuban flash, obtained from Cleveland in a trade involving infielder-outfielder Bubba Phillips and catcher John Romano, said "they offered me the same salary I had the last time I played with them."

"They should remember my 1959 record. I hit .302, drove in almost 100 runs (92 to be exact) and hit 21 home runs."

White Sox president Bill Veeck seemed unconcerned that Minoso was dissatisfied. "We offered him a fair contract and Minnie just likes to make a production out of signing," said Veeck.

Yellow Jacket Coach Hal Cochran Tells Cobb County Tournament Attack Plan

Smyrna, North Cobb Favored In Cobb County Tournament

Marietta Hosts Meet Tuesday

By PAUL ATKINSON
Constitution Sports Writer

MARIETTA—That yearly Cobb County tradition, the Cobb County basketball tournament, comes swooping in here Tuesday and promises to be just as wild and frenetic as ever.

Officially, Smyrna High School's boys and North Cobb's girls have been topseeded. But in this tournament—where the unexpected always happens—that means nothing.

For instance, misfortune has already struck Roger Russell's North Cobb girls. When the pairings were drawn up, North Cobb was winging with only one loss. Since, however, star forward Diane Wilber suffered pulled knee ligaments and the North Cobb girls have lost three in a row. Suddenly the pendulum of girls' favoritism has shifted south to South Cobb, which features high-scoring Frances Allen.

Three Games Slated Tonight

The Larry Bell Auditorium attraction, which will find 15,000 or better frenzied basketball fans shuffling in and out during the four days of tournament competition, opens with three games. In the first game, Osborne girls seek a victory over McEachern at 7 p.m. Then follow, at 8:15, South Cobb vs. McEachern boys, and at 9:30, North Cobb boys vs. Sprayberry.

Neither of the top-seeded boys' teams, Bill Bennett's Smyrnans and Charles Kennedy's Osborne Cardinals, will see action Tuesday. Instead, the big boys' game must be the clash between Hal Cochran's Sprayberry Yellow Jackets, geared by the outside shooting of Jimmy Wall and Norvell Conner and the inside work of Benny Rickman and Charles Hardy, and Russell's North Cobb boys, who go with Jackie Brooks' rebounding and scoring.

Short, quick South Cobb, coached by Charlie Hipsher, has a pair of fine players in Jerome Prince and Danny Hyatt, while Bobby Page's McEacherns ride with Ronnie Johnson's rugged board work.

Peggy Blackwell and Linda Van Sant head up the McEachern girls' cast, while Doris Haver has been the high scorer for Osborne.

Bennett, when put on the spot to pick a boys' "team to beat," pegged either Sprayberry or Osborne. "Both are rugged," he said. "Sprayberry gave us fits for a while last Friday, and Osborne is always tough."

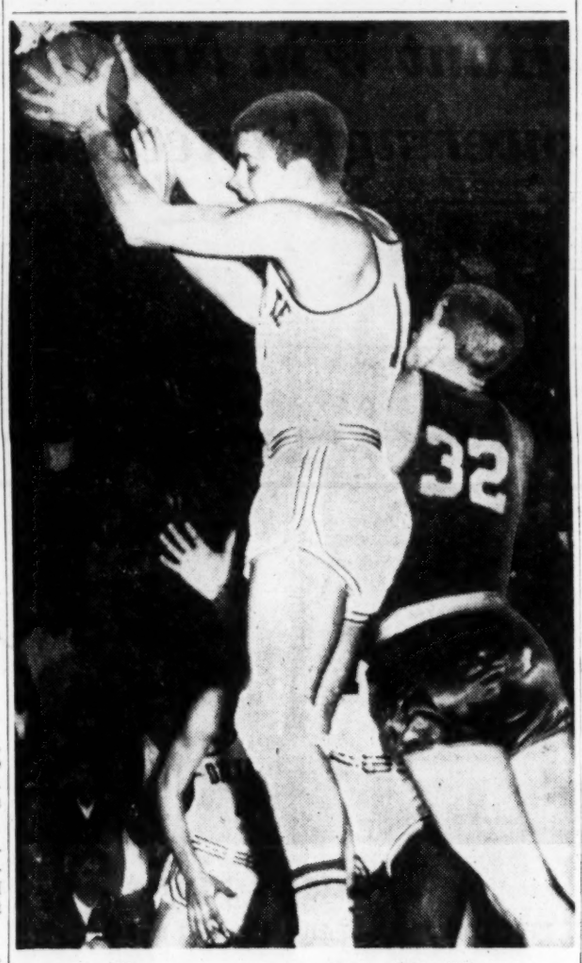

COBB COUNTY TOURNAMENT

TUESDAY—7 p.m.—Osborne girls vs. McEachern; 8:15—South Cobb boys vs. McEachern; 9:30—North Cobb boys vs. Sprayberry.

WEDNESDAY—7 p.m. South Cobb girls vs. Osborne-McMachen winner; 8:15—Campbell girls vs. Sprayberry; 9:30—Smyrna boys vs. South Cobb-McEachern winner.

THURSDAY—7:30—North Cobb girls vs. Smyrna-Sprayberry winner; 8:45—Osborne boys vs. North Cobb-Sprayberry winner.

FRIDAY—7:30 girls finals. 8:45—Boys finals.

Lucas on the Ball

COLUMBUS, Ohio—Ohio's Jerry Lucas (11) comes down with ball for a rebound and is fouled by Michigan's Bob Brown (32) as he attempted to knock the ball from Lucas' hands. Ohio State defeated Michigan, 99-52, here in a Big Ten basketball game. Lucas hit 23 points. (Associated Press Wirephoto).

Morris Brown Captures No. 13

Morris Brown College's basketball team beat Tuskegee Institute, 86-65, here Monday night for its 13th win in 15 games.

MORRIS BROWN (86) — Ross, 17; Flagg, 11; Scott, 19; Pettiford, 10; Wimberly, 10; Meneffe, 3; Barnett, 6; Myers, 1; Bolden, 2; Wright, 6.

TUSKEGEE (65)—Crawford, 15; Myrick, 11; Reynolds, 16; Williams, 4; Watts, 6; Stutton, 3; Crier, 1.

From Press Dispatches

Tulane fought back from a 12-point halftime deficit to top Mississippi State, 51-47, in overtime in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Monday.

In other SEC games Mississippi defeated LSU, 76-61, and Tennessee stopped Florida, 84-68.

Tulane put on a blistering second half rally to knot the count at 45-45 on Jack Ardon's foul shot at the end of regulation play. The Greenies trailed, 31-19, at halftime.

Vic Klinker netted 17 points to lead the Greenies in scoring. He made 7 of 8 fouls to lead Tulane at the free-throw line too. David Glasgow, with 13 points was State's top scorer.

The Greenies hit for a 42.1 floor percentage, making 16 of 38 shots. Mississippi State hit on 16 of 34 tries for a 47.1 mark.

Dodd Bids for Bass; Tech Keeps Woodruff

By AL THOMY

South Carolina line coach Marvin (Moose) Bass has been offered a similar post at Georgia Tech, The Constitution learned Monday.

Bass reportedly will give his answer in a day or two after talking with Coach Warren Giese of South Carolina and Mrs. Bass.

Tech coaching ranks, grown thin in recent days, were reinforced Monday with the announcement that defensive coach Lewis Woodruff had decided to remain with the Jackets instead of following Ray Graves to Florida.

Woodruff said the serious illness of his father, a 73-year old retired policeman at nearby Griffin, had forced him to change his mind. He asked Tech Coach Bobby Dodd to take him back and Graves to release him. Both agreed.

The see-sawing coaching picture left Graves with a defensive coaching vacancy and Dodd with one less position to fill.

Dodd and Bass conferred for several hours Monday.

"I had a good talk with Marvin and I am very much interested in him," said Dodd.

The Tech coach had this comment on Woodruff's return (actually Lew had never been away):

"We are extremely sorry over his family problems. Of course, we are delighted to have him back."

From Columbia, Giese said he was not surprised Tech had called Bass for consultations.

"Over a period of four years, Marvin has received 11 offers to go to other places," said Giese. "This is his 12th. He has always declined the offers.

"I always encourage my coaches to investigate every good opportunity, just as I would do. I am sure Marvin will sleep on it before making a decision."

Bass, 39, is a native of Norfolk, Va. After starring as tackle and team captain at William and Mary, he served under two head coaches at North Carolina and was a member of the Washington Redskins staff before going to South Carolina in 1956.

year. The previous mark was 28 points scored by Porter Powers against Ole Miss.

Pennington hit 13 of 18 shots from the field—72.2 per cent—and made good on 7 of 9 from the free throw line. He scored 26 points against Georgia Tech recently.

Pennington's final goal was in the air as the whistle sounded.

Ray Clark was high man for Vandy with 14 points.

OLYMPIC FLAME HITS U.S. VIA POLAR FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The flame that will burn at the Winter Olympic Games at Squaw Valley arrived by polar jet from Norway Monday.

Parry O'Brien, U.S. Olympic shot-put champion, took the blaze in a small lantern-like container in a helicopter from the airport to Memorial Coliseum. O'Brien lighted the tripod that burned with the Olympic flame during the 1932 Oympic games here.

A relay team of 600 high school athletes is running the flame to the winter games site near Lake Tahoe, about 600 miles north in rugged snow-capped Sierra.

The flame was first lighted about 100 years ago in a cottage in Morgedal, Norway, by Sondre Norheim, father of modern skiing.

WITH BIG GAME ON TAP—

Injury, Flu Hit Brown, Westminster Quints

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

You'd hardly expect coaches whose basketball teams have 15-2 and 16-4 won-lost records to pick "Cry Me A River" for a theme song. But Brown High's Joe O'malley and Westminster's Dave Drake can match sob stories with anyone.

Here comes the big game of the season for both — Northside at Brown and Sandy Springs at Westminster Tuesday night—and some of their top stars will be either bench-riding or bed-ridden.

O'Malley's Johnny Rebs, who hope to defend their title in The Constitution-sponsored state Class AAA tournament Feb. 24-27, must face the only quintet that has taken their measure (twice) without playmaker Eddie Jordan and possibly forward Harold Ogles.

And Drake's green-and-white-clads must attempt to ward off the Region 4-AA West title bid of Max McBrayer's Panthers without guard Harrison Jones and forward McKee Nunnally, top Wildcat scorers who are averaging 10 and 12 points an outing.

Hard-luck Jordan, out the first month with a broken foot, reinjured the appendage against George High's Falcons Saturday and is possibly out for the year. Ogles, sidelined for two games already, Nunnally and Jones are three of Greater Atlanta's 16,000 flu-stricken school-goers. Some hope is held out that all can play.

Edd O'Quinn's Northsiders, led by radar-equipped Jerry Brooks and his 24.9 points-per-game average, invade the West Enders gym with a 20-1 chart and designs on the City League's Western Division crown.

They catch the pre-season 3-AAA favorites at low ebb again, for center Mickey Babb, also out with an injured foot for several games, and guard Mike Hartsfield, sidelined for a few days with flu, have not been sharp since returning to action.

Westminster, 6-1 in the sub-region and second only to Sandy Springs and its 8-0, needs a victory to keep McBrayer's surprise entry from winning the regular-season crown.

The Tigers will attempt it with key roles. Two Bills—Abott and Benedict—have been impressive lately and will fill in for the ailing.

Defense has been the Westminster keynote with Blackwood and Howell excelling in the rebounding department. That's how they'll try to do it Tuesday.

It's liable to be a "low scorer" for Sandy Springs has limited foes to fewer than 40 points in 10 of 15 wrangles. Laddie Berg, Gary Puckett, Gene Pearce, 6-5 junior, at center; Arthur (Speed) Howell, 6-1 senior, at guard, and Bob Blackwood, 6-3½ junior, at forward, in WEDNESDAY—8, finals.

Rockdale has won 12 of 14 games, losing twice to Newton County. Stone Mountain is 14-3, one loss having been to Class AA Avondale. Stone Mountain is led by Jerry Attaway, firing 22.5 points a game and picking off 23 rebounds and outing.—ROBERTS.

SLEEPY MR. GROUNDHOG USUALLY MISSES HIS APPOINTMENT

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

As you know, if you've looked at your calendar, or the date on your morning Constitution, this is Ground Hog Day. The old superstition says that if the ground hog comes out of its den and sees its shadow, the critter will go back to bed for six more weeks of sleep, which is how long winter is supposed to continue. If he can't see his shadow, he is expected to stretch, yawn and wake up for the year.

Charles Elliott

Since much of our state is not inhabited by ground hogs, we'll probably have to depend on the less reliable weather bureau to tell us when we can pack up our winter duds. The Southern woodchuck, which is another name for the ground hog, reaches as far south as our Blue Ridge Mountains, but we seldom see him in latitudes below the highlands.

Feb. 2 is also Candlemas Day, commemorating a Christian tradition. The American version of the ground hog forecast is said to be based on the old Scottish belief that

"If Candlemas is fair and clear,

There'll be two winters in the year."

An early American backwoods interpretation of this said

"February, second day,

Have half your corn and half your hay."

Then we finally twisted it around and put the blame for a long winter on the poor old ground hog, who was so sound asleep in his den that he was unable to stagger out and defend himself.

For the ground hog is one of the soundest of sleepers when he goes into hibernation for the winter. He burrows deep into his hole, scrapes the dirt in behind him, sealing off his bedroom, which he has floored with hay. Any other creature as an opposum or skunk, is privileged to use the same den, but they never break into that back bedroom. The ground hog rolls himself into a furry ball and his body temperature may drop to 50 or even 40 degrees. The heart action slows down to a few beats a minute, and he may breathe as infrequently as once in every four or five minutes. He may sleep as long as five or six months, his body living off the fat he stored through the warm days of summer.

This hibernation is nature's provision for taking care of certain of her creatures through the lean period of the year. Many of the birds escape the starvation months by flying south to a warmer climate where food is plentiful. About the only bird known to hibernate is the poorwill of the western states. He was known by the Hopi Indians as "Holchko," or Sleeping One.

Certain of the lower vertebrates, as frogs and turtles, bury themselves in the mud at the bottom of ponds or other waters. Some of the squirrels and related rodents store a supply of food. Others, like the woodchuck, simply go to bed and relax into a sleep which is so deep that they are as close to death as they can get without actually being dead. Some bats, in hibernation, have been found with body temperatures close to freezing. When he is awake and active, the lively little chipmunk has a normal heartbeat of from 100 to 150 times a minutes. Deep in his winter sleep, his heart muscles slow down to about five beats for each 60 seconds.

If you live in the mountains, don't spend too many hours watching for the ground hog to come out of his burrow today. No one has ever told him that he is supposed to appear and look for his shadow. The chances are, that sunny or otherwise, he'll remain curled up in his overcoat until the ground warms, the birds head home from their tourist flights and spring begins to spread its charm over the hills and valleys.

And after all, it's much more fun to criticize the weatherman.

Aye, Never Too Cold for Irish

A little cold weather never hurt Christopher Murphy. He's used to it. "From where I come from, in Ireland," Mr. Murphy said the other day, "we have weather like Atlanta had last week all the time."

So, Mr. Murphy and his fishing companion, Rex Lee, spent the weekend recently at Hugh M. Stinchcomb's lake at Fayetteville. Stinchcomb is sheriff of Fayette County.

"We went out on Saturday," Murphy recalled, "and caught 17 crappies. And on Sunday we pulled in 35 more, and three-fourths of the lake was frozen over."

The fishing duo bought their bait, minnows, in Jonesboro.

"The water the minnows came out of was nice and warm," Murphy said. "By the time they got in the cold waters of the lake, they nearly froze to death."

The Atlanta fishermen used spinning outfits off the shore to catch their crappies.

A little cold weather doesn't stop Mr. Murphy and his fishing pals.—SEWELL

Dick's Day Has 8 Finds

CANTON, Miss. (AP)—Dick's Derby Day chalked up eight finds Monday, most of them handled cleanly, as four more finalists sniffed for quail in the National Field Trial Club's free-for-all.

The overall performance of Monday's finalists, however, had fans speculating that judges would ask to see more dogs Tuesday before crowning a champion.

Paired with Dick's Derby was John Oliver, a white and liver pointer owned by M. K. Mitchell of Llano, Calif., and handled by Jack Harper. John Oliver had three clean bevy finds, handled stylishly, but had several unproductives also.

Boats Soaking You? Blame Phoenicians

Fiberglas Boats Lead Field for 1960 Season

By DICK SEWELL

If a man has to buy a new boat and motor every year or so to keep up with the 20th century version of the gondolier, he can blame it on the Phoenicians.

For over 2,000 years the Phoenicians perfected and developed the ship as a cliched-seaworthy craft. They popularized the great sport of boating.

Nowadays, one out of every five Americans participate in some form of boating.

Bill Wallace of the New York Herald Tribune estimates that the boat population of the United States will reach eight million this year and that 40 million people will spend $2½ billion at retail dealers.

While two million people took up boating in 1959, the volume of business increased 25 per cent.

Most of those water-wise sportsmen are, naturally, fishermen.

Stewart Hopkins, district sales manager of the Lone Star Boat Co., who lives in Buford, Ga., estimates that approximately one out of four Americans will be using boats by the end of this year.

Hopkins represents the world's largest manufacturer of fiberglass and aluminum outboard boats.

Forty per cent, or 130,000 units, of all small pleasure boats built in the U.S. last year were of fiberglass. In fact, during the recent boat show in New York City, which attracted 500,000 spectators and buyers, there were more glass boats than any other kind, aluminum, plywood, lapstrake, or wood planking.

Other basic trends for boating 1960 include the emergence of Evinrude and Johnson challenging the long-time power leader, Mercury, in the outboard horsepower race.

Evinrude and Johnson are now only five horses behind Mercury, offering the four-cylinder vee-type 75s against the Mercury 80.

A little different step in the opposite direction has been taken by Scott with its weight saving 7.5 horsepower fishing motor.

Back in 1950 the New York boat show at the Grand Central Palace had a Mercury 25 as its biggest motor. The Merc 80 of 1960 is significant of the speedy decade of boating progress.

The newest display in Gotham from the Southeast was the Atlanta Boat Works 17-foot Aristo-Craft Funliner fiberglass outboard runabout, available with a convertible or Fiberglas hardtop.

Also, the 1960 Boat Show had its first display of production-model jet-powered craft, which now are undergoing performance tests.

There is a marked trend away from fancy doo-dads in boats this year. Function of boat has taken the place of ostentatiousness.

The sailing boats are as trim and sharp as ever, but in 1960 there are more of them. A decade ago the outboards were taking over, maybe in the '60s the sails will be No. 1.

2 ATLANTA ANGLERS CATCH MIAMI NOTICE

In the fish roundup of the week two Atlantans won honors in the Miami Metropolitan fishing tournament.

Everill Whitaker, 575 Glen Forest Rd., NE, won angling recognition in the 25th Annual meet when he caught one kingfish in the all-tackle division. His guide was Capt. William Nelson on the "What Fun" out of Pier 5, Miami.

Clarence Meyer, 2263 Shamrock Dr., Decatur, pulled in a 20-pound dolphin that was entered in the tournament. He was guided by Capt. Ralph Nemire on the "Seacomber" out of the Castaways Motel Docks, North Miami Beach.

A note from Johnson's Landing, from Jack Wingate, reports the big bass are ready to be taken after the long wet spell. The camp is on Lake Seminole, 20 miles south of Bainbridge off Georgia highway 97. Wingate advertises bream, shellcrackers, crappie and the bass as the big attractions.

GOP Convention: 60's Dullest TV?

By PAUL JONES

Since the three networks look upon the national political conventions as flag-waving spectaculars which can be sold to sponsors in much the same manner that the World Series and bowl games are marketed, it might be smart if someone in politics—or broadcasting, for that atter—gave some thought to the Republican demonstration, which at this point looms as the dullest show on television this year.

Jones

With Richard Nixon appearing a shoo-in for that party's nomination, the Republicans won't have anything to do but stand around and pat each other on the back. As you know these political "love feasts" can become mighty dull in a very short time.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who is one of the Democratic hopefuls, has suggested that the GOP throw in some old Westerns when things get dull during the week of whoopin' in Chicago, starting July 25. As an alternative he says they might get an old movie or two and exhibit them, between speeches.

Variety, the always alert show business trade journal, reports that George Murphy, an outspoken Republican who headed up the convention programing for 1956 and who is doing the same-again this year, might be saddled with the chore of emceeing the GOP convention hoorah. Since George, a one-time hoofer, has been preoccupied with politics rather than dancing for the past 15 years, some televiewers might wonder "who is he?" There's also talk that George Montgomery, who would be unknown, too, were it not for the old, old films on television, might assist as co-emcee.

THE DEMOCRATS HAVE always been a rowdy bunch of fellows, who like to parade banners, make speeches, sing, and argue, argue and argue. Historically, their conventions have been better shows than have those of the Grand Old Party.

Entertainers who vote the Democratic ticket, too, are generally the type who have not outlived their usefulness as performers.

The Democratic candidates are more skilled in the art of histrionics, as witnessed in some of the appearances of this party's front-runners on such programs as Meet the Press.

With a large list of fair-haired-boys from which to choose, the Democratic spectacular, which starts July 11 in Los Angeles, ought to be interesting as well as suspenseful.

The inevitable squabble over civil rights, involving the Southern delegations, should make this convention one of the liveliest ever.

Since viewers are more concerned with the visual aspects of these demonstrations than they are with the issues at hand, it becomes the responsibility of the convention planners to entertain the viewer; put on an extravaganza, a human circus for him.

The sponsors who have the Democratic convention will get their money's worth. Viewers, regardless of their political affiliations, will be entertained and possibly enlightened by the Democratic get-together.

But the sponsors who are paying for the Republican mutual-admiration-society affair are going to be short-changed, unless, as Sen. Humphrey suggested, they buy some old Gunsmoke or Wagon Train episodes or a couple of old movies.

DIAL TWISTERS: A Georgian, Mrs. B. J. Russell, of 2005 Highland Cir., Rome, has won the January showcase on the daytime Price Is Right. Her prizes are a new car, movie camera, beach hat, cologne, leather stationery kit and linoleum. Dan Duryea will replace Darren McGavin in one of the Riverboat shows. Darren became ill and doctors ordered him to take a rest. Dan stepped in after writers had made some changes in the script. . . . An Atlanta viewer has often called this department to comment that Dinah Shore has the best press agent in the business. I wonder if he has seen the cover and nine-page spread in one of the picture magazines? This is supposed to be the largest coverage ever given an individual in the publication's history. The story was overplayed, I thought. . . . What the critics are saying: Jack Gould of The New York Times: "The Ernest Hemingway play, 'The Fifth Column,' was very substantially rewritten in A. E. Hotchner's adaptation. The main pity was that Mr. Hotchner did not go considerably further." Amen.

Scouting TV Tonight

Here's an Eerie---and Funny Show

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BET—Don't let the first few moments of "The Greatest Man Alive" on Startime Tuesday make you leave the show. If you're frightened off by the slow and somewhat macabre start, you'll miss some fine light comedy later on.

We begin with Ed Wynn setting cheerfully about the project of hanging himself. But with the addition of a girl cereal researcher, the boy from downstairs and Wynn's old crony, business picks up. Somehow the police get the notion Wynn is holding the girl captive and the show comes to life at this point. It slows down again later, but the middle portion, when the cops try to get Wynn to give himself up, is very pleasant fun. Bert Lahr plays the crony. He and Wynn, although they've appeared on the same vaudeville bill in years past, have never before worked together.

STARS ON STARTIME
Bert Lahr

Nancy Olson and Russell Nype are the representatives of the younger generation. This was a Broadway play in '57, with Dennis King in Wynn's part, but it wasn't successful. It isn't great, but the part suits Wynn better than it did King, it has some good lines and you'll enjoy the middle. 8:30-9:30 (Ch. 2)

8:30-9 (Ch. 5)—Dobie Gillis has one of his funniest outings with Tuesday's episode, in which he gets involved with a troupe of acrobats. Mostly it's the girl in the troupe—played by a lovely young thing named Yvonne Craig—who sets his juices to stirring. She is the kind who eats nuts and berries, wears a tunic and thinks Dobie needs building up. Francis X. Bushman, as her father, sets about to build him up, and very nearly tears him down.

9-9:30 (Ch. 11)—The Rifleman Tuesday takes a plot from a Wichita Town episode of a few months ago and does a bit more with it.

The idea is that a young man in town (played by Robert Culp) kills the much-feared Domino Kid—and he's a hero until it's discovered he shot him in the back. Quickly the roles are reversed—The Kid is now the posthumous hero and Culp the dirty villain. There's a lesson in all this about our tendency to glorify criminals, which is worth having the kids listen to.

9-9:30 (Ch. 5)—Mike Connors, the nameless hero of Tightrope, is currently TV's roughest, toughest hero. In Tuesday's episode he's up to his old dirty tricks again, as he infiltrates his way into the good graces of Jerome Cowan, as usual playing the gangland boss.

The object of his job is to find out what big shot is marked for murder.

9:30-10 (Ch. 11) — Another toughie is Philip Carey, as Philip Marlowe. Tuesday he gets mixed up in some society shenanigans. A millionaire's ex-wife hires him to prove the innocence of a stable boy (who quotes Thoreau), who has been accused of taking the new wife's diamond ring. The new wife turns out to have a shady past, and past and present come together with a bang. The bang, of course, comes from a revolver. There are a couple of scenes in a steam bath where things get pretty hot.

10-10:30 (Ch. 11)—Alcoa Presents' effort Tuesday is one of the hardest to swallow, if you are trying to believe that these things ever happened. A little girl recovers from a near-fatal attack of scarlet fever and does not recognize her parents. Simultaneously, some miles away, a woman who has been mute with grief since her daughter drowned snaps out of it.

The girl becomes "possessed" with the idea she belongs to the other lady and, in fact, goes to live there. It may not be plausible but it makes a good story. Anna Lee, the one-time glamor girl of English movies, plays the bereaved mother.

Pockets Jingling In Dixie, U.S. Finds

Southern families have more money in their pockets than ever before, an U.S. Department of Commerce report disclosed Monday.

Families located in a 16-state area from Florida to Texas plus the District of Columbia, had a record median income of $4,106 in 1958 — topping by $364 the 1956 median.

The 1958 Southern family median income was $981 less than that for the nation as a whole. Other regions recorded the following family income medians: Northeast, $5,560; North Central, $5,154, and West, $5,674.

The report noted "a substantial disparity" between white and non-white families in the South. While 1958 median of white families was $4,565, for non-whites it was only $2,014.

Colonial's Sales Pass 450 Million

Colonial Stores, Inc., has reported sales of $450,748,917 for 1959—a 3.1 per cent increase over 1958 sales of $437,132,213. A 1959 net profit of $3,757,491 compares with $4,605,427 for the previous year.

Earnings applicable to common stock, based on the 2,755,000 shares now outstanding, were $1.13 per share in 1959, compared with $1.70 in 1958.

Company spokesmen noted that a special charge of $488,044 had been incurred in August, 1959, in connection with the sale of its Indianapolis branch and that a special credit of $243,135 in a federal excess profits tax refund was recorded in 1958. Excluding these non-recurring items, operating earnings per share of common stock were $1.31 in 1959 and $1.61 in 1958.

At year-end, Colonial had 459 supermarkets in operation, compared with 473 at the end of 1958.

Colonial officials predicted 1960 sales would reach $475 million and said an improvement in earnings is anticipated as a result of higher sales and the elimination of operating losses attributable to the Indianapolis branch and to "other unprofitable units closed during the year."

Falcon Wagon Prices To Start at $2,225

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. announced Monday that the Falcon station wagon will go on sale in March at prices of $2,225 for the two-door model and $2,287 for the four-door model.

The prices were described as manufacturer's suggested retail prices. They do not include freight, optional accessories, or state and local taxes.

Ford said these prices will make the Falcon the lowest-priced six-passenger compact station wagon on the market.

GM Plants Add Million Feet Here

By JIM MONTGOMERY

The past decade brought an expansion of more than one million square feet in the Atlanta plant and warehouse facilities of General Motors Corp.

In a review highlighting the 1950-59 growth of its Georgia operations, the nation's biggest auto maker also reported Monday that during this 10-year period it:

Jim Montgomery

1. Spent more than $600 million in the state, including both plant payrolls and purchases from several hundred supplier firms.

2. Produced nearly 2¼ million cars and trucks in its three Atlanta area plants.

The 1,167,000-square-foot expansion of GM plant and warehouse facilities here during the decade included additions of 344,000 to a total of 1,300,000 at the Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac plant in Doraville, 360,000 to a total of 780,000 at the Atlanta Chevrolet plant and 178,000 to a total of 470,000 at the Atlanta Fisher Body plant. It also includes 285,000 for the new Chevrolet-GM Major Supply Depot in Doraville.

Present combined area of these four facilities totals 2,835,000 square feet.

GM's Georgia expenditures for the 10-year period totaled $606,643,350, including $322,959,134 in purchases and $283,684,216 in Atlanta plant payrolls.

Of the 2,244,747 vehicles produced from 1950-59, the Chevrolet plant assembled 1,242,837, the BOP plant 1,001,910.

In 1959, GM employed an average of 6,547 workers in its Atlanta plants (plus 753 non-plant employes in the state), which had a total payroll of $35,723,409 and produced 225,191 vehicles. Its Georgia purchases last year totaled $42,560,574.

Ten years earlier, in 1949, GM's Atlanta plants employed an average of 3,835 workers, had a total payroll of $15,078,506 and produced 169,512 cars and trucks. In the same year, the company's Georgia purchases totaled $18,909,741.

These comparisons, backed up by the enormous capital investment poured into plant expansion over the past 10 years, stand as an impressive tribute by the nation's largest industrial corporation to its Georgia workers.

It is a record of which both General Motors and Georgia can be proud.

Odd Lot Transactions

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange reported today these odd-lot transactions by principal dealers for January 29: Purchases of 403,758 shares; Sales of 316,993 shares including 3,003 shares sold short.

Red TV to Link China, Europe

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Plans for a TV link between Europe and Red China furnished a prime discussion item at an international television conference here. Sponsors said seven European Communist bloc countries soon will become part of a big TV network to be known as intervisions.

3 STOCKS TO BUY ON NEXT STOCK MARKET DIP

An Opportunity to Test Our Forecast Skill!

The stock market action of recent weeks clearly indicates the possibility of a dynamic reaction ahead. Would you like to have us notify you when we think this will occur?

Our Dow Theory experts have been amazingly accurate in predicting major market moves, as our thousands of regular subscribers will attest. No theory is supposed to be 100 per cent accurate, of course, but we are proud of the record shown by our market analysts since we began our investment service. Three weeks before the great 1929 market crash, the Dow Theory clearly signaled the coming collapse. More recently, we were able to help our subscribers sidestep the declines of 1948, 1953 and 1957 and cash in on the great rises of 1953, 1956, 1958 and 1959.

You can be included in our "private warning system" by simply becoming a trial subscriber to the Dow Theory Forecasts Investment Service for the next 30 days. All we ask is one dollar to cover the cost of postage and handling. And as a special BONUS, if you act now, we will also send you at no other cost, our Special Report on 3 NEW STOCKS that we think will offer unusual profit possibiliteis during the next reaction.

STOCK NO. 1—A fast-moving auto parts maker with further earnings increases in store for 1960.

STOCK NO. 2—An established company producing equipment to streamline billing, mailing and duplicating procedures. Could move rapidly.

STOCK NO. 3—A fast-growing chain of women's apparel shops that paid 10% in stock the past year and could repeat. This payment was in addition to its regular dividend.

Here is an exceptional opportunity to try one of the country's leading investment services directly by mail, and have our assurance that for the next 30 days, at least, you will be among the first to receive any market warnings that may be sent out.

This Special Dollar Offer to become a trial subscriber and sample our complete investment service places you under no obligation to continue the service later on. Should you wish to become a regular subscriber at the nominal cost of only $5 a month, you may do so at the end of the trial subscription period. In the meantime, you will have the peace of mind that can only come from knowing that, no matter what happens to the stock market, the wisdom and counsel of a reputable investment service is on hand to guide and help you. This offer open to new trial subscribers only.

And We Send You All This, Too!

With the Weekly Forecast, sent to you each Friday, you will also receive such things as: (1) Our Stock Services Digest, a weekly consensus of what 18 other leading investment services are recommending; (2) Our private Market Commentary, containing our BUY and SELL suggestions; (3) Our MASTER LIST OF STOCKS; (4) Industry Surveys; (5) Growth Stock Recommendations; (6) Model Stock Portfolios.

And in addition, you will receive by return mail as a Special Bonus, our report on the 3 NEW STOCKS for quick profit possibilities. This is an unusual opportunity to test the foregoing ability of one of the leading investment services with our compliments.

SPECIAL DOLLAR OFFER

DOW THEORY FORECASTS, INC.
333 N. Michigan Ave., Dept. AJC 2-1, Chicago 1, Illinois

Industrial Shares Lead Light Upturn

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market got up off the floor, making a moderate recovery, after a bad series of beatings.

It was the first time in four weeks that "blue Monday" was not observed with a sharp decline.

The rebound was on such small volume—2,820,000 shares—it had little air of conviction.

Steels and motors were active leaders in the advance. A number of assorted chemicals, electronics and rubbers rose as industrial stocks carried the ball. Rails and utilities did little or nothing on average.

It looked like a technical recovery to market analysts, although the news background was generally good. Automakers reported a big increase in production. Less pressure for an increase in the basic bank interest rate was noted. Incoming orders, production and employment were said to have improved.

The market advance, however, was patchy. A number of high quality as well as speculative issues, which have lost a lot of ground, recovered a good part of it. Union Carbide, for instance, won back 3 of the 10 points it dropped last week.

International Nickel proposed a 2-for-1 stock split and a raised dividend. The stock rose 1¾.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed.

Corporate bonds rose in fairly actively trading.

U.S. government bonds rallied in fairly briskk trading amid definite signs of easier money.

Grains Dip Near Lows

CHICAGO (AP)—The decline in grain futures prices speeded up and after the most general setback in several days numerous contracts were near their lows for the season.

These included nearly all the corn, rye and soybean deliveries. Soybeans, with losses running to about a cent, were only a little over 3 cents at best from the bottom, corn and rye less than 2 cents away. March wheat was under pressure but finished ⅝ cent over its low for the day. The only plus signs were in new crop wheat, all small.

Brokers ascribed the general weakness to more liberal cash receipts at major markets and elevator points and a halt in export business over the weekend.

Cotton Closes 5 to 2.40 Off

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures closed 5 cents to $2.40 a bale lower.

Heavy liquidation and trade selling were touched off by the new support price on the 1960 crop. On the basis of middling ⅞ inch cotton, the supports will be about 1½ cents a pound lower than the 1959 crop. This is more of a decline than many traders anticipated.

Losses extended to $2.40 a bale before recovering about 50 cents a bale on mill and New Orleans buying. Toward the close the market again weakened on selling.

Declines in nearby months were slight.

One broker sold about 15,000 bales of October Futures, according to estimates. Some traders believed that this concentrated selling was for a leading spot firm.

POULTRY

GEORGIA LIVE POULTRY

Broilers and fryers: Demand for ready-to-cook poultry rather dull and averaged mostly only fair at present market price levels. Available supply of marketable live birds continue to clear closely with current requirements. Estimated slaughter by Georgia processors Monday 1,146,000 head compared to 1,247,000 head last Monday. Georgia Poultry Exchange Friday offered 190,500 head and sold 182,700 head as follows: 40,600 at 17.9-18.3c—95,600 at 18.4-18.6c—46,500 at 18.7-18.1c.

Buyers offering prices per pound on birds not priced prior to Monday's movement: at farms 17-18¼c, mostly 17c, 884,000 head. Prices paid per pound Friday and Saturday, including sales on exchange: Broilers and fryers 2¾-3¾ lbs. at farms 17-19.1c, 1,194,000 head: 38 per cent at 17c, 1 per cent at 17.25c, 2 per cent at 17.5-17.9c, 10 per cent at 18-18.4c, 9 per cent at 18.5-18.9c, 1 per cent at 19-19.1c, 25 per cent intra-company transfers, 14 per cent undetermined.

Hens: Trading moderate, offerings increased and generally adequate under a fair demand. Prices on heavy type irregular. On the Georgia Poultry Exchange Friday 5,100 head heavy has sold at 19.9c. Prices paid per pound including sales on exchange for heavy type at farms: 19.9-20c f.o.b. plants, 19-21c, mostly 21c; light type at farms 7½-8½c, mostly 8-8½c; f.o.b. plants, too few to report.

Sugar Futures

NEW YORK (AP)—World sugar futures were slightly lower. The market displayed a hesitant tone pending development of more business in the world market and also a possible further cut in export quotas by the International Sugar Council. The council is expected to meet in London Tuesday to study the sugar situation.

World raws were quoted at 2.92 cents a pound f.a.s. Cuba.

Domestic futures were unchanged.

The domestic raw market was quiet. Sellers were quoted at 5.95 cents a pound delivered, which was five points above the official spot price last Friday.

The refined market was slow.

SUNDAY SPECIAL

HONOR SYSTEM MAY BE ANSWER

Cheating . . . especially in college . . . has always been present. But not on such a large scale as has come to the public's attention lately. Taking a firm stand, Georgia Tech is making plans to do something about it. The Constitution's Ted Lippman reports on Tech's plans to draft an honor system to end cheating and takes a look at what other Georgia schools are doing about the situation.

DOES SUBURBIA NEED INDUSTRY?

The great migration to the suburbs has brought increased demands on tax-supported services. Can residential populations provide enough revenue for these services, or is industry . . . to some degree . . . needed? Patrick McCaffrey, Journal staffer, examines this problem in Atlanta's surrounding counties.

Panel to Discuss 'A Million Needs'

A panel discussion will highlight the 55th annual meeting of the Family Service Society at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Jewish Community Center.

Taking part in the discussion on "A Million People — A Million Needs" will be Superior Court Judge Luther Alverson, immediate past president of the National Committee on Mental Health; Morris B. Abram, chairman of the Crime Committee of Atlanta; Dr. William Rottersman, chairman of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Mental Institutions, and Frederick G. Storey, president of the Family Service Association of America.

The meeting will be open to the public.

Buenos Aires Selling State-Run Buses

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Economics Minister Alvaro Alsogaray, the nation's foremost proponent of free enterprise, says he is going to sell the state-run Buenos Aires bus system. He said bids would be accepted from private business within 60 days.

Kin of War Dead Can Get Photos of Graves

Photo lithographs of the overseas graves or memorials of World War II servicemen killed in action are available free of charge to next of kin, Pete Wheeler, state director of veterans services, said Monday.

The photographs, a 13x17-inch aerial of the military cemetery and a 3x5 insert of the individual grave or marker, are immediately available for those buried or memorialized at eight European and African cemeteries, Wheeler said.

The cemeteries are located at Cambridge, England; St. Laurent, France; St. James, France; Draguignan, France; Epinal, France; Margraten, Holland; Nettuno, Italy, and Tunis, Tunisia.

Photos of other grave sites and memorials will be available later this year, and those of memorials in Honolulu, New York and San Francisco when they are completed, he said.

Applications should be made by next of kin only directly to the American Battle Monuments Commission in Washington, D.C.

Wheeler said no special form is required. A postal card or brief letter giving the serviceman's name, his service number if known, and the relationship and mailing address of the person making the request will suffice, he said.

Research Termed Defense Bulwark

By FRANK WELLS

Research has gone from "rags to riches" in the past 20 years and is now the real bulwark of the defenses of this country, one of the nation's leading heart experts said in Atlanta Monday.

Dr. Irvine H. Page, director of research and member of the governing board of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation, and a past president of the American Heart Assn., spoke at a breakfast kicking off the February fund drive of the Atlanta area Heart Fund Monday morning, and later at the luncheon meeting of Atlanta Rotary Club.

Dr. Page was speaking of all scientific research, but he narrowed his subject to heart disease quickly. "Fighting such a crippler is an investment—not a charity," he said at the breakfast. "The amalgamation of lay people with scientists in our organization (Heart Assn.) is a good thing. The laymen now realize that science is expensive."

STRESS UNAVOIDABLE

Dr. Page—his subject as vital as your next heartbeat—kept both audiences relaxed with his humorous approaches to his serious subject.

On research of several years ago: "They called us long-haired experts, but it was really because we couldn't afford haircuts."

On the fact women have less arteriosclerosis than men: "They say that at age 85 there are about six women to every man, but by that time it's too late."

On the "stress" of modern living: "Stress is the price you pay for being a human being. Animals face up to no challenge as man does. But stress has always been with us. Don't you imagine the people who built the pyramids were under some stress from the Pharaohs? Imagine a nation without stress. Book title: 'Miltown, Under the Spreading Atrophy'."

FEVER "ON THE RUN"

Dr. Page said that one of the big heart problems—rheumatic fever in children—is "on the run," mainly because mothers are educated to the dangers of streptococcic throat infections and call their doctors sooner.

He said that the problem of arteriosclerosis has not yet been solved, but that progress is being made. He pointed out that the sometimes seeming disagreements among doctors as to the causes of the disease are due to the "many facets of the disease," and that such disagreements are healthy signs that scientists' minds are working on the problem.

'DON'T FEAR DEATH'

He gave Rotarians some tips about avoiding heart trouble: "Treat rheumatic fever early. Avoid obesity. Take exercise. Meet stress with equanimity. At first indications of high blood pressure, get medical advice. Be moderate in all things, and above all, don't live in fear of death."

Rease Inge, general chairman of the Atlanta Area Heart Fund, presided at the breakfast.
